A Real Attorney-General Turtle, King, Fliers How Women Teach Men The Soul Weighs Zero

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

Attorney-General Daugherty, as aggressive and able a man as the public service has had for many years, has exploded one pretty little balloon in the coal strike. The operators said they didn't dare meet with their men to consult because if they held a wage conference they might be prosecuted by the Federal government.

The Attorney-General tells them that so far as prosecuting goes, he is the Federal government. And there won't be any prosecuting if they meet the men as they should do. They will have to get along without that excuse.

Four important things in life, in the order of their importance, are: Air, water, food, coal, which last means power, heat and light. None of the four should be at the mercy of any scheming gang; none of the four should be for one moment outside the control of government, and the Attorney-General knows it.

No matter where you go, there is danger. No wonder the ancients said nobody could escape his fate. The sad history of Oedipus, the King, proves it, and that of the Greek warned that he would be killed by a house falling on him. He slept out of doors always to fool the oracle. One fine day an eagle, carrying a heavy turtle, dropped it on the man's head, and he died. The turtle shell was the "house."

Oedipus, poor thing, simply because the oracle had predicted it, killed his own father, married his own mother—and lived miserably ever afterward—although he tried his best to behave. "Es kann kein Mensch sein Schicksal entgehen."

All that is apropos of two flying machines running between Paris and London. They ran into each other up in the air, both came down in flames, six were killed. You are not surprised when automobiles collide in a narrow country road, but with the air road, twenty-five thousand miles wide to travel in, collision seems strange.

It reminds you of the well written story of the sea turtle asleep on the surface of the Pacific, run into and cut in two by a big steamship—not room enough for both of them on the wide Pacific.

Miss Stone shot Mr. Ellis Guy Kinkead—no doubt about the shooting. The jury approved her private, personal reasons for the shooting and acquitted her, while the crowd shouted approval and she kissed her lawyer. That's undoubtedly as it should be. Since the beginning of time women have educated, disciplined and improved men by killing them when they needed it. They did it with a stone hatchet twelve thousand years ago; with a little pistol recently.

Miss Stone, pleased with public approval, says, "I want to forget."

"There's the rub," as the Danish gentleman remarked. Shooting is easy, forgetting is hard. A human conscience is no emotional jury. It keeps telling you THE FACTS, with nobody in the courtroom to cheer, no lawyer to kiss, no reporters to take "flashlights."

This from a reader: "You say the real human creature is a soul, weighing nothing at all, not even the ten-thousandth part of a grain. How do you know that the soul doesn't weigh anything—have you ever seen one or weighed it?"

No, but after you are dead your body will weigh just as much as it did when you were alive and your soul will not be there any longer. How much does the soul weigh? Nothing.

New and unusually sad news comes from Ireland. Two hundred Dublin rebels against the Free State attacked the custom house and destroyed ten million dollars' worth of wines and whiskies belonging to Belfast firms. In years to come, to the day of the "Great Wind" will be added the day of the "Great Waste," when ten million dollars' worth of whiskey and wine were poured out.

Col. Gaston for U. S. Senate

URGED TO GO INTO FIGHT

Banker Formally Announces Intention of Being Candidate for Lodge's Seat

William A. Gaston, prominent banker and attorney, chairman of directors of the National Shawmut Bank, member of the law firm of Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall and Hunt, today announced he would be a candidate for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket.

The announcement caused no surprise as it had been rumored for several days that the prominent lawyer-banker would seek a berth in the Senate.

"Many persons have urged me," he stated in a written announcement, "to make a contest for a place in the United States Senate in the belief that I can be of service there. I have decided to do so.

"If elected to that high office I shall go to Washington pledged to the preservation of national security; to the support and advancement of the interest of Massachusetts as well as the whole country; to the furtherance of Massachusetts enterprises and Massachusetts business. I shall endeavor to be a constructive and helpful representative of our State and the representative of all its citizens."

Gaston was born in Boston May 1, 1859, and graduated from Harvard College and Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the bar in 1882.

ENDS LIFE IN CHUM'S HOME

Malden Boy Goes to Attic to Fix Radio and Turns on the Gas

Edward Bergh, sixteen years old, son of Edward F. Bergh of Dell street, Malden, was found dead today, a suicide by gas, in the attic of the home of his chum, Ralph M. Gordon, Waverley street, that city.

Young Bergh is believed to have been driven to the act by the constant brooding over the death of his mother two years ago.

He was employed as a messenger boy by the Malden Gas and Electric Company. Yesterday he casually asked a fellow employe "how much gas it would take to kill a man."

The employe ventured a reply and then dismissed the matter from his mind.

Last night young Bergh visited his chum and together they repaired to the attic where they were joint owners of an amateur radio set. They listened in on the outfit for a while, then went to the movies.

When they returned home young Bergh stated that he was going to make some minor repairs to the radio set and then spend the night at Gordon's house.

Gordon bade him goodnight and young Bergh went to the attic.

When she awoke today Dorothy Gordon, a sister of Bergh's chum, scented gas. She aroused her parents and they traced the fumes to the attic.

A jet in the room was found wide open.

Young Bergh has been despondent for some time and a few days ago his father urged him to seek a change by visiting an aunt in Connecticut. He had planned to make the visit next week.

2 HELD IN DEATH OF HUB MAN IN CHICAGO

By Associated Press.

Chicago, April 8.—Miss Veronica Long and Louis Zandt, her husband, were taken into custody here in connection with the killing of William Parlon, thirty-two years old, of Boston, who was shot last Tuesday night as he stopped his automobile in front of the young woman's home to call on her.

Miss Long separated from her husband eight weeks ago, and assumed her maiden name. Both are being held pending further investigation.

Parlon, whose wife is in Los Angeles, had just stopped his automobile when two men appeared. They spoke to him, and as he turned, police said, shot him through the side. He died fifteen minutes later.

WARM WEATHER TO BE FOLLOWED BY SHOWERS

Today promised to prove the warmest April 8 in the history of the local Weather Bureau. The mercury started climbing from 55 at 4 a. m. until it reached 64 at 10 a. m. The warm spell extends from Florida to Maine. Showers are predicted for tomorrow, with a fall in temperature by tomorrow night.

FALLS INTO HOT WATER, WORCESTER CHILD DYING

Worcester, April 8. — George Bodourian, three years old, of No. 295 Southbridge street, was scalded when he fell into a small tub of hot water, which his mother was preparing for his bath. The entire right side of his body is burned, and he is dying at the City Hospital.

ESCAPES ON WAY TO JAIL

Cambridge Boy Eludes Officer After Chase Through Several Streets

A shot, shouts and a wild chase over fences and through back yards marked the daring escape of seventeen-year old Eugene Vaughn of Amory street, Cambridge, as he was being led back from the Third District Court, East Cambridge, to the House of Correction.

Vaughn in custody of Deputy Master George B. Ford, of the Middlesex County Jail, was coming through the lower hallway of the courthouse. Ford was holding the young man by the arm and as they neared a door, Vaughn gave a bound, snatched his arm from the officer's grip and fled through the open door.

Ford drew his revolver and raced after the young fugitive. Vaughn was some twenty yards down the street by the time the officer reached the door.

The officer fired a shot, missed and took up the chase. Down the street went Vaughn and after him went Ford, followed by the half dozen or so citizens in the street at the time.

Round the corner into Thorndyke street fled Vaughn, with Ford losing ground in his rear. The fugitive dodged into an alley, ran into the rear of some houses, climbed a fence, dodged behind a heap of debris and had disappeared by the time the panting officer came up to this spot.

WEALTHY WIDOW ADDED TO LIST

Brookline Society in Panic as Further Revelations Are Promised

Another "kissee" in the Morrill divorce became known today.

She is Mrs. Maude Hanley, wealthy widow, living on Beacon street, Brookline. She is now in London on a tour of Europe.

Her name became known following testimony by Leon G. Morrill, who is suing his wife, Florence R. Morrill of Brookline, for divorce. Morrill admitted the witness stand that he had kissed women other than his wife. Among them was Mrs. Sarah C. Carter, wife of Douglas S. Carter of Brookline, who is named as a corespondent by Morrill.

Morrill will resume his testimony in the Suffolk Superior Court Monday. He will be futher questioned about kissing and petting parties.

RICH WIDOW NAMED AS "KISSEE" IN MORRILL DIVORCE SUIT

BROOKLINE SOCIETY IN PANIC

noised in Morrill's set in Boston and Brookline there was consternation.

Even the statement on the stand by Morrill that the "card set," as he called the members of his exclusive bridge club, had not considered kissing "good form" and so had escaped, failed to lighten the apprehensive gloom of Brookline society mothers, fathers and husbands.

Already the names of some of the "kissees" have been dragged from the unwilling witness under cross-examination by opposing counsel.

COULD NOT REMEMBER.

But when the questioning attorneys attempted to get him to name some of the others he had kissed his memory failed. He could not remember them, he insisted.

He even failed to remember the name of an exceedingly pretty young lady with whom he had taken an automobile trip into the White Mountains. The trip and some of its details were clear enough, but beyond the fact that the name was not "Mabel Gilman," nor "Mabel Gilmore" nor "Betty" he could not remember a single thing.

However Morrill agreed to look up his records and tell the court upon he found out or could recall at the next session.

He is also expected to give some more details regarding the "Mr. and Mrs. Carette" who were other members of the party.

Parents of Brookline's exclusive set are perturbed today by the possibility that the names of their daughters may be dragged into the divorce scandal, as members of the fashionable bridge club which met at the Hotel Coolidge, Brookline, where Morrill lived after parting from his wife.

NEW SENSATIONS COMING.

Sensational as the evidence to this case has been so far attorneys for all concerned admit that even more startling evidence might be expected before the case comes to a conclusion, which probably will be late next week.

Morrill, who was been on the witness stand continuously since the case opened last Tuesday, was forced to admit, under cross-examination by Attorney Lothrop Withington, former Harvard athlete and now counsel for Mrs. Morrill, that he refused to speak to Mrs. Morrill during the Fall of 1918 and the Spring of 1919.

At that time Mrs. Morrill's nervous condition was such that doctors warned Morrill not to annoy her or trouble her.

"Did you do one single thing to make life pleasant for her during that time?" asked the attorney.

"No," admitted the husband.

Under cross-examination Morrill told of having sent his wife $100 monthly allowance. From this he was in the habit of deducting any amount for items charged to his account for the entertainment of her women friends.

He admitted having sent her a formal letter enclosing a check for $98.10, the ninety cents having been deducted, he said, to pay for three bottles of ginger ale and soda water.

"Was that a dandy thing to do?" asked Withington.

"It was a fair thing to do," responded the witness.

"You did not stop to think if it was a kind thing to do?" persisted Withington.

DOES NOT ANSWER.

The witness gripped the rail in front of his chair, until the knuckles of his hands turned white, and his face became serious, but he made no answer.

Morrill told of having stopped his wife's ordering supplies for their son Paul street home. He admitted he had passed her one day in his automobile while she was walking to get a street car. She was carrying a heavy suitcase, and was on her way to her mother's Summer home in Rockland, Me., where she was going to recuperate after another attack of nervous trouble.

It developed in additional examination that in the Fall of 1918 Mrs. Morrill had been forced to obtain employment at the office of her stepfather, Frank L. Stanley. Mrs. Morrill admitted he had sent her no money for months.

In spite of this, he confessed under pressure from the questioning attorneys that the deed brought him and that he went to see his wife at her place of employment to ask her to sign a quitclaim returning that she was dependent on him for support.

"Do you expect me to sign this paper under the circumstances?" Morrill testified his wife asked him.

MRS. MORRILL SMILES.

Later he admitted she had signed the questionnaire, although it had been months since she had sent her any money.

Throughout the testimony of her husband Mrs. Morrill, accompanied by her fourteen-year-old son Russell, sat smiling in the witness room, guiding her counsel in the cross-examination.

She smiled delightedly when Morrill was compelled to admit that when women guests had been at their apartment he had entered the guest bedroom.

A maid had testified to having

STATE HOUSE CLERK IS SECRET BRIDE

Twenty-one, the girl's father thought, was too young for her to venture on the matrimonial sea, but she thought different, and the couple secretly paid a visit last June to the rectory of St. Cecilia's Church, where the knot was tied. Her father has relented and blessed the happy pair. (Photo by Champlain.)

ADA NAGLE LANDRY

BACK BAY GIRL IS SECRETLY MARRIED

Defied Father's Objections Last June and Wedded Newton Man

A romance culminating in a secret wedding came to light today when formal announcement was made of the wedding, last June, of Miss Ada Nagle, former clerk in the Civil Service department, State House, and Joseph Landry of Newton.

The bride's father, Richard H. Nagle, an upholsterer at No. 375 Tremont street, opposed the marriage, deeming his daughter, just 21, too young. The young pair confided in Mrs. Nagle, who lives at No. 35 Falmouth street.

Despite the parental opposition, they procured a license and were married by Rev. Dr. John J. McGarry, administrator of St. Cecilia's Church, Back Bay, in the rectory of the church.

The bride continued her work at the State House, and it was some time before word of the ceremony reached her father.

He became reconciled to the situation and gave the young couple his blessing. The young folks are living in Cambridge. Landry is in the auto repair business in Newton.

BIG SHAKE UP EXPECTED IN POLICE

Captains Reardon and Fitzgerald Slated to Be Transferred by Wilson

Reports of a big shakeup in the Boston police department, which has been persistent since the death of former Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis and appointment of the present commissioner, Herbert A. Wilson, took definite form today.

The most clearly defined feature is that Captain Charles T. Reardon, division inspector and head of the vice squad, is to be transferred from his present position to take charge of the City Prison. At present a lieutenant is in command there.

It is known that Reardon has been expecting a transfer and that he has confided to several friends since the induction of Commissioner Wilson, that he, Reardon, would like to be given a station.

Another feature of the report is that Captain Richard Fitzgerald, now in charge of the Joy street station, is to be transferred to an out-of-town station, such as Brighton, West Roxbury or Mattapan.

Just before his death Commissioner Curtis is known to have called to his office two captains of outside districts and asked them if they would care to be transferred into the city in place of Fitzgerald.

It was said today that a West End politician of powerful influence is back of the demand for the transfer of Fitzgerald.

Police Headquarters today heard that plans are under way to replace James H. Devlin, secretary to the commissioner and veteran term of office expires on May 23, with a Democrat.

WIFE DIVORCES BRIDGHAM FOR CRUELTY

Providence, R. I., April 8.—Samuel W. Bridgham, millionaire of this city, became angry on a trans-Atlantic liner when his wife is alleged to have become intimate with a Cuban passenger that he created a scene on shipboard and threatened Mary Whalen, station agent, here, saved the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad $600.

FULLER OPPOSES NEW STATE PRISON

Clinton, April 8.—Lieutenant Governor Fuller, in an address of the First Baptist Church, spoke against the building of a new State prison at this time. "It would be very fine," he said "to have a modern State prison away from the congested city, but there are others in our State more deserving of expenditure of money than the criminals in our prison."

21 MORE VETERANS ARE GIVEN WORK BY MAYOR

Mayor Curley today gave employment to twenty-one more war veterans for a period of six months in the Park Department. They will receive $4 a day.

BRITISH TROOPS BACK ON GUARD IN DUBLIN

English to Aid Collins; De Valeraites Attempt to Seize Phone Exchange

Dublin, April 8 (By the Associated Press).—No objection has been made by the Irish provisional government to the placing of British troops on guard duty at Dublin Castle. There is some imperial property still in the Castle, and an attack on it is among the possibilities.

Dublin, April 8.—British soldiers acting under orders from the British government, took over the guard duties at Dublin Castle together with armed forces of the Royal Irish Constabulary whose disbandment has been suspended.

Republican forces attempted to seize the phone exchange here, but their activities were forestalled by Free Staters.

GROWS WORSE DAILY.

The situation of Ireland daily grows worse owing to activity of Republicans. It was reported that Irish Republican army forces swooped down on the town of Midleton, County Cork, in search for three Free State prisoners who escaped them.

Captured Free Staters have been imprisoned in many places. Under the circumstances it is feared that the organization of Michael Collins will crumble.

MEETING TOMORROW.

Republican army executives will meet here again tomorrow when a final draft of its proposals will be made.

Republicans are on the street every night, fully armed. Entire companies march until early morning practicing street warfare.

This action is regarded as a prelude to more serious events.

Irish Republican army forces ousted Free State troops from the Rathfarnham barracks and took possession.

KILLED DEFENDING BANK.

Irish Republican army mutineers at Mullingar have closed the courts and threatened to arrest the judge.

Captain Cox of the Irish Republican army was killed while defending the Castlerea branch of the Ulster Bank. The Landesboro Bank was robbed also.

Appeals to People to Uphold Free State

By International News Service.

Dublin, April 8.—An appeal to the Irish people to uphold the loyal action of the Irish Republican army supporting the Irish Free State was issued today by General Joseph Commander-in-chief of the Free State troops.

"At this time," said the proclamation, "we should all remember what the people did for every individual volunteer during the war when times were dangerous. We are soldiers. But we come from the people. We should never forget the loyalty of the people to us when the penalty of their support was death.

"It would be criminal to break the sacred alliance between the people and the army during the war the people stood by the army. Now it's the army's turn to stand by the people and respect their rights."

Churchill Fears Worse Trouble in Ireland

Dundee, Scotland, April 8.—Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill declared in a speech here today, that conditions in Ireland may become worse than during the days of the war, while the Irish continue to kill each other.

ROCKLAND WOMAN DENIES ALIENATION OF SON

Mrs. Annie M. Sweetser of Rockland, in filing an answer to the $10,000 damage suit brought by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Maud Sweetser of Malden, who alleged the alienation of her husband, makes a general denial of the charges. Sweetser died a little over a month ago, leaving a $10,000 insurance policy in which his mother is named as beneficiary.

ATTLEBORO RAILROAD STATION IS ROBBED

Attleboro, April 8.—The foresight of Mrs. Mary Whalen, station agent, here, saved the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad $600.

NEWTON MAN ACCUSED AS SWINDLER

Caught on Cape After Long Chase and Accused of Taking Investors' Cash

A two-months' chase from Newton to Maine and then to a village on the tip of Cape Cod, a village so small that it contains no stores and only one spot of illumination, an oil lamp in front of the general store, ended with the capture of Victor Neal.

Neal, formerly of Neal & Company, real estate operators, at No. 230 Commonwealth avenue, was arraigned before Judge Keen in Newton Court today on three counts of larceny, pie pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 bonds for trial April 20.

It is alleged he fleeced several prominent Newton families in real estate transactions. Losses, police say, may run into several thousands of dollars. Two families are known to have lost approximately $3,000. Neal is also said to be wanted in half a dozen cities in New England on similar charges.

Lieutenant Richard Goode of the Newton police made the arrest.

He had combed the Cape for five days before he located Neal.

Neal, who is forty years old, has a young wife at present with friends in Newton Centre.

She formerly lived with her husband at No. 29 Clark street, Newton Centre. They had two automobiles and lived in style.

Neal's manner of transactions were veiled by police pending testimony in court. He is said to have interested several prominent families in real estate deals, and fled with first payments. Information that arrest was forthcoming led him, police charge, to flee the Newton on February 7. He dismantled his home, mortgaged his automobiles and left his wife "good-bye" on the following day when police called at his office it was empty.

BOGUS ENGLISH NOBLEMAN IS JAILED

William Woodruff, alias Fred Ferguson and Fred Southward, bogus son of a "rich English nobleman" in Newton Court today was given three months by Judge Bacon for theft of $120 from William J. Bray, aprominent Newton resident.

Woodruff already is serving a term in the House of Correction for fleecing a Quincy clergyman of $400.

Posing as an "old friend of the family" from the old country Woodruff made Bray's confidence. Woodruff claimed to be the scion of a rich and titled English manufacturer and as such Bray introduced him to many prominent Newton families.

Eventually Woodruff "borrowed" $120 from Bray to run over to New York and collect his remittance. He never came back.

A few weeks ago he was captured after a sensational chase in Manchester, N. H. and brought back for fleecing the Quincy pastor. Other charges of similar nature are said to be pending against him in Greater Boston cities.

Railroad Washouts Isolate Capital Of Missouri

By International News Service.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 8.—This city was without direct railroad communication to the outside world today.

Five days of almost incessant rain have caused a number of washouts on the Missouri Pacific and Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroads. Rail communication is still possible over the Wabash and Chicago & Alton, which run on the opposite bank of the Missouri River and which may be reached by trolley car.

Beardstown, Ill., April 8.—Increased fears were felt today that the levee protecting one side of the city from high waters of the Illinois River would break. The water has reached the highest point on record.—More than 100 families have moved to high points. Two hundred men are piling sandbags behind the levee.

WARRANTS FOR 3 ASKED IN BOND THEFT

Boston Police Recover $28,000 Loot When They Capture Men at Gun Point

Inspector George J. Farrell made application in Municipal Court today for warrants for three of four men arrested by the bank squad in the financial district yesterday when $29,000 in stolen bonds were recovered.

The trio were later arraigned before Judge Sullivan and held in $50,000 bonds each as fugitives from justice. This was the heaviest bail ordered in the local court in years.

The application was made on receipt of a wire from Chief of Police Josiah Michels of Aurora, Ill., that "Morris Kosser of Cleveland, John Russell of Denver and John Maguire of Boston" were wanted there for blowing open a safe in a church and stealing its contents.

The wire stated that three inspectors have already left the Illinois city for Boston to take the prisoners back.

The four men were grilled today by Chief Inspector John R. McCann and Captain Alnsler C. Armstrong.

The fourth man, who gave his name as Daniel Shea, his residence as Waban Hill road, Newton, and his business as a stock broker, was released after the grilling. The police were satisfied he had nothing to do with the case.

The quartet were arrested at gun point.

They were taken into custody by Inspectors Haggerty, Towle and Cleveland Thursday and $28,323 to the American Railway Express. Voluntary petitions filed today included: John W. Dunbar, a plumbing contractor, Essex street, and Arthur J. Doyle of Newburyport.

WALKOUT CLOSES MINES; FIVE OTHERS OPENED

Charleston, W. Va., April 8.—Union leaders reported today that a mine at Matewan had been closed by the walkout of non-union workers.

Williamson operators claimed a production of 20,000 tons yesterday, with all mines working at normal capacity. Five mines in the Kanawha region opened today, they added, in addition to the eighteen previously operating.

3 ARRESTED IN INTER-STATE DRUG PLOT

Taken at Lawrence After Sale to Officer and Brought to Boston for Trial

A chase through cities and towns in New Hampshire and Massachusetts ended in the arrest in Lawrence of three men accused of conducting a big drug running system between the two States.

The men who were caught by United States narcotic agents, operating from Boston, are William A. Mitchell, known as "Panama Jack"; Daniel McGuire and James T. Gleason.

The trio were brought to Boston and will be arraigned in the United States District Court today.

"BRAINS" OF SCHEME.

Mitchell is said to be the "brains" of a drug-smuggling scheme by which Federal officers claim thousands of dollars' worth of opium is taken from Massachusetts to New Hampshire every year.

Mitchell, it is said, acknowledged that he was engaged in the traffic, saying that he did so to support his wife and four children.

TRAPPED IN LAWRENCE.

The arrests were made after the Federal men had trailed "Panama Jack" from Manchester, N. H., to Nashua, and thence to Lawrence, the home town of all the three men. The trio are said by federal agents to have confessed to taking part in alleged drug transactions.

Two narcotic agents, acting on a "tip" from an outsider, reported following "Panama Jack" from New Hampshire into Lawrence. One of the agents claims to have given the Gotham money for a "deck" of morphine.

HELD IN $3,000 BAIL.

The "dope" passed from Mitchell to Gleason and then to McGuire, who is alleged to have delivered it to the agent. All three were trailed by the authorities along Essex street, Lawrence, to Mitchell's apartment at No. 345 Essex street, Lawrence, where the arrests took place.

Several hundred dollars' worth of morphine, cocaine and scales are reported to have been seized at the apartment.

Upon arrival in Boston the trio were taken to the Lagrange street station, and held in bonds of $3,000 each for appearance before the United States commissioner.

CANDY COMPANY SUED IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

Fred H. Roberts Company, candy manufacturers, Cross street, North End, were petitioned into bankruptcy court today by the Old Colony Trust Co. and John E. R. Haynes, as executors of the will of Fred H. Roberts of Framingham. The petition states there are unsecured claims of $54,047. It also says preferential payments have been made, among them $103,000 to the Cleveland Trust Company and $2,-

Pilot's Death Makes Seven Victims in Crash

Paris, April 8 (By the Associated Press).—R. E. Dubs, pilot of the English plane which crashed into a hangar at the Paris-London-French Goliath on the Paris-London aerial route yesterday near Thieuloy, died in the hospital at Beauvais today without recovering consciousness.

Dubs was the only person in either machine to survive the crash, and his death brought the total of those killed to seven.

The fog, caused by clouds and mist, is given as the primary cause of the catastrophe. Three other flyers are at the time keeping the railroad tracks in sight so as to be able to use their skill to bring them together head-on.

It seems certain that those in the Goliath knew their danger at least some seconds before the crash, as, when the body of Mrs. Christie was found, her right hand was pressed to her eyes as though to shut out the sight of the impending collision.

Besides Mrs. Yule, the dead are: Her husband, who was a New York engineer; Paul Bouriez, another passenger; Pilot Mire of the Goliath and his mechanic, and Pilot Dubs of the cabin boy of the English machine.

Air-booking agencies announced today there had been no cancellations on account of the accident. There are flights every day on the planes operating services between Paris and London, with a combined fleet of sixty machines.

All the companies conduct a daily service, some flying two airplanes a day.

HARD COAL PEACE PARLEY TO BE RESUMED TUESDAY

New York, April 8.—Union representatives of the anthracite coal operators, who have been in session as a wage scale committee today and returned to their respective districts, will reassemble here Tuesday, it was decided at their conference today and returned to their respective districts, when negotiations will be resumed.

The basis upon which operators will conduct their fight for wage reductions was outlined today by S. D. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company. He asserted, however, that the Governor had not yet decided what per cent. of reduction they will seek to incorporate in the new anthracite contract.

"The price of coal has reached a point where the public is ready to welcome competition of such substitutes as coke, gas, certain fuel oils, bituminous coal and electricity, which can now be burned more cheaply than anthracite coal," said Mr. Warriner.

CALLS ON HARDING TO EXPLAIN DISMISSALS

New York, April 8.—The National Civil Service Reform League today issued a statement through its acting president, William Dudley Foulke, asserting that, as an economy measure, President Harding should assign his reasons for dismissal last month of 1,200 employees of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Richard H. Dana of Boston is president of the league, and Arthur R. Kimball of Washington, Conn., chairman of its council.

WANTS TO TAX ALIEN RESIDENTS IN CANADA

Ottawa, Ont., April 8.—A proposal to place a special tax upon the incomes of all aliens, not residents of Canada but employed in Canada or deriving their income from services rendered in Canada, will be made to the House of Commons by W. W. German, Liberal member for Welland. German said he contemplated a tax of 8 per cent. upon all such incomes exceeding $1,000.

TOYMAKER BETRAYED HER AFTER PROMISE TO WED, GIRL SAYS

WON HER IN 13-DAY WOOING

Miss Rourke, in $25,000 Suit, Claims Nathan D. Cass of Athol Posed as Single

Worcester, April 8.—Despite the fact that he was a married man Nathan D. Cass, wealthy toy manufacturer of Athol, paid ardent court to Miss Irene Rourke of New York city, won her heart in thirteen days and then broke his promise to marry her, according to Miss Rourke, who is suing him in Superior Court here for $25,000 heart balm.

Miss Rourke declares in her complaint that Cass not only promised to marry her, but also betrayed her under the promise of marriage when he knew that marriage was impossible.

According to Miss Rourke's attorney, A. Z. Goodfellow of Fitchburg, courtship was short and fast. Cass met Miss Rourke, according to the girl's story, January 31, 1921.

The alleged betrayal, Miss Rourke declares, occurred in Hotel McAlpine, New York, February 12, 1921.

Miss Rourke declares Cass represented himself to her as a single man. She says she believed him and after the hotel McAlpine episode went ahead with preparations for the coming marriage. She says she even went so far as to spend $700 on her wedding outfit, which was all ready when she learned that he was married and could not carry out his part in the alleged agreement of marriage.

FILES INTERROGATORIES

Miss Rourke declares that Cass became "very affectionate and ardent" within a few days after meeting her and completely swept her off her feet with his whirlwind loving. When she discovered that he was married she says her heart was broken and she suffered the damage which she sees at $25,000.

Following the filing of the suit, and the attachment of Cass' property to the extent of $25,000, Miss Rourke filed a list of interrogatories which the wealthy toymaker has just answered.

According to the answers of Cass, he met Miss Rourke while on business trip to New York. He was stopping at the Hotel Breslin at the time and was introduced to the girl by Randolph Smith. Many of the questions asked were not answered by Cass, who claimed it was not necessary to answer them.

Among the interrogatories were the following.

Did you in January and February, 1921, escort Miss Rourke to the Castle Cave Grill Room at No. 271 Seventh avenue, New York?

Did you have rooms at the Hotel Breslin?

Did you in January and February, 1921, escort Miss Rourke to "The Bat" "Ladies' Night"?

When and on how many occasions did you escort Miss Rourke to the theatre?

Were you introduced to a girl by the name of Minerva Stephens?

Did you occupy a room at the McAlpine Hotel, New York, on the night of February 12, 1921? If so, did you occupy it alone? If not, who shared it?

Did you register in the guest book?

What names did you register?

Who was with you?

ADMITS MEETING GIRLS.

In his answers, Cass admitted he had met Miss Rourke while on a business trip and that he was stopping at Hotel Breslin. He also admitted he had escorted her to the "Castle Cave Grill," but denied he admitted he had visited her at her home in New York.

Cass declared that he did not remember whether he stopped at Hotel McAlpine on February 12, 1921, or not. He did not recall whether he registered, either. He declared he did not remember whether or not he had taken Miss Rourke to "The Bat" or to "Ladies' Night," two theatrical productions, or not. He refused to state how many times he had taken the girl to the theatre. He also admitted he had met Miss Minerva Stephens.

ESCAPE TENEMENT FIRE IN ROXBURY

SIX FAMILIES ARE SAVED BY BOY OF 15

Six families, roused by a boy hero, fled to the street in their night clothes when fire of unknown origin broke out in the apartment block at Nos. 75 and 77 Magazine street, Roxbury.

Fifteen-year-old Timothy Regan, sleeping in a bedroom of the upper tenement, was awakened by the crackling of burning woodwork in an adjoining room.

Without waiting to locate his clothing, the boy first called his father, Patrick Regan, then armed with a broom stick handle, visited every apartment in the building beating a warning on the doors that the building was afire.

Firemen and police assisted the awakened families to the street.

OMIT 'OBEY,' SAY BOSTON WOMEN

Relic of Days of Slavery and Already Obsolete, Declare Writers

The word "obey" in the marriage service, which an Episcopalian commission, after due deliberation, has recommended be omitted, is already obsolete, according to Boston women writers.

In practically every modern marriage it has been honored more in the breach than in the observance, they declare, and in many cases the bride has caused it to be stricken from the service.

WOMAN NOW A PARTNER.

Edith Lynwood Winn, Boston writer, said:

"I should say that the word 'obey' might be omitted from the marriage ceremony. People generally feel that the word takes away from the thought of comradeship which is the main thought in the marriage service. The word was used originally in its Biblical sense. Women were enjoined to obey their husbands. We have improved since that time. Woman is now a partner, and the term is not just what we would like to have it mean today."

Miss Katherine Searle of Cambridge, another prominent writer, said:

"The word should be dropped. It seems to be obsolete. That is, the word is obsolete. Most people have omitted it already. Most of my friends at least have dispensed with the word. I am not an Episcopalian but a Unitarian. To my mind the word is obsolete in the wedding ceremony."

FROM SLAVERY DAYS

"To me the word 'obey' implies persecution," said Mrs. Madeline Doty, writer and feminist. "The idea that the wife is the property of the husband has been handed down from days of slavery.

"The marriage relation and promise pertaining to it should be essentially spiritual. There can be no real affection between two persons when one is enabled to dictate to the other or even discuss the word 'obey', when people are individuals and respect each other as such, they are able to love because they are just themselves."

Leonard Rowe, in the name of the trust company, presented the colors. General Mark L. Hersey, commander of the Coast Artillery Forces, First Corps Area, received them.

CIVIL SERVICE CONTROLLED BY POLITICIANS

Probe Reveals Practice of Appointing Friends Without Taking Examinations

Control of the Civil Service Department by executives of State departments and politicians was revealed today by a further investigation of the Civil Service examination frauds.

It is learned that a system is in vogue of political patronage, whereby friends of politicians or friends of friends of executives in State departments are placed in positions which should be filled only through civil service.

These appointees, it was found, are put in ostensibly temporarily, but in reality hold the position for years.

There is a strong movement on foot to have this system investigated simultaneously with the theft and manufolding of examination papers. The matter would come up under the head of the bill filed by Representative Coleman E. Kelley of Dorchester, which asked for a full investigation by the Legislature of the Civil Service scandal.

His bill would provide for an investigating committee consisting of three Senators and six Representatives. The bill is now before the Committee on Rules of the House.

CLEAN BILL FOR LYNN.

There is a great deal of feeling being manifested at the State House and other places over the appointment of young men and women ostensibly for a short time, defeating those who have passed the civil service examinations with high marks.

Civil Service Commissioner Fayerweather today notified Mayor Harlan C. McPhetres of Lynn that that city was in no way involved in the Civil Service scandal. He told Mayor McPhetres he might go ahead with the appointments of a police captain and patrolmen.

The Mayor therefore appointed Inspector John T. Curry as captain and Acting Inspector V. H. Rennen as regular inspector.

Detective Sergeant Albert W. Carney will be tried at an early date by a board of police captains on charges growing out of his alleged activities in the sale of stolen civil service examination papers to members of the police department seeking promotion.

This decision was reached as Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson after reading a report of the independent police investigation of the scandal, which he ordered Superintendent Michael H. Crowley to make. The inquiry was conducted by Chief Inspector John R. Quigley of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation to which Carney had been attached. Carney's chief was Lieut. Daniel Hill.

OTHER FRAUDS REVEALED.

Herbert S. Hill of Revere, seventh assistant clerk in Boston Municipal Court, today followed his suspension by Chief Clerk Edward J. Lord. Chief Clerk Lord accepted the resignation. Hill has retained Attorney John P. Feeney as counsel. Carney also has an attorney.

Hill and Carney are suspected of having manifold examination papers purchased from John J. McMasters and Frederick J. Thomas, the two examiners dropped from the civil service department after their confessions to Commissioner Payson Dana.

Information about the examination frauds was not only brought to the attention of the Civil Service Commission by the police department, but also by Judge Joseph E. Donovan of the Charlestown District Court, who is also a civil service examiner.

Judge Donovan declared that he learned of the scandal on March 1st in connection with the police bookmaking investigation, and that he investigated and after a conference with Commissioner Dana conferred with Mayor Peters. He made a complete report of his findings on the 20th.

1,000,000 MEN LOSE JOBS IN BRITISH WAGE FIGHT

Washington, April 8.—A million men have been thrown out of employment by the lockout in the British engineering and ship building trades, according to a report from Commercial Attache Tower to the Department of Commerce. The shipbuilders' grievance is against the employers' decision to cut war-time wages 48 cents.

STAR OF LILIOM AND BRIDE HE WON HERE

ON THEIR HONEYMOON

WORLD'S "MOST HANDSOME" MAN WEDS

Star in "Liliom," Famed as "Beauty," Courted His Bride in This City

He is Joseph Schildkraut, "star" in "Liliom."

She was Miss Elsie Bartlett Porter of New York. As Elsie Bartlett she was a member of the Somerville Stock Company. She lived at a Beacon hotel. That is when they met. The romance culminated with the marriage in Philadelphia when in the presence of the bride's parents and the bridegroom's father, who acted as best man, the ceremony was performed in the City Hall.

Schildkraut was born in Bucharest and educated in Berlin. His acting in "Liliom" during its run in Boston this Winter caused much favorable comment. He was dubbed the "world's handsomest man" by a noted European producer.

His bride studied in Paris for grand opera, but switched to the spoken drama. Besides playing stock in Somerville she was in the cast of "Three Live Ghosts" and "Scrambled Wives."

Davis told the police he took the car of Harley Godfrey in this city because he was ill and without funds and wanted to get home to Malden.

PONZI HID BIG SUMS AWAY, IS REPORT

"Is Common Knowledge," Says Bank Counsel in Federal Court Proceedings

"It is common report that Charles Ponzi has large sums of money hidden away," was the declaration made by Attorney Edward F. Blodgett of this city, counsel for the Merchants National Bank, Manchester, N. H., at a hearing before Federal Judge Morris in the suit brought by the Penn trustees who are seeking to recover $197,000 of Ponzi's money handled by this bank.

Attorney McLellan for the trustees argued that the paying out of $197,000 of Ponzi's money by the Manchester bank, on Ponzi's orders and checks after it was generally believed that he was insolvent, constituted preferential payments in bankruptcy. The trustees counsel also contended that the payment of this money left the bank liable to refund the amount.

Attorney Blodgett denied liability of the Merchants National Bank, alleging that the institution paid the money in question on Ponzi's orders and argued that the bank was not responsible for the money.

Counsel for the bank in arguing Ponzi's insolvency remarked to the court: "It is reported that Ponzi has large sums of money hidden away."

"By expert knowledge?" Attorney McLellan asked. "By common knowledge," replied Attorney Blodgett.

The court asked that briefs be filed in the case within fifteen days.

BANDIT FLEES BEFORE CARMAN'S SWITCH IRON

Worcester, April 8.—Cornelius Cronin, operator of a one-man car, picked up his iron switch stick and took a swing at the head of a holdup man who entered the car, revolver in hand, and ordered him to turn over his cash. The unnerved bandit jumped from the car and fled into the woods beside the road. The would-be hold-up occurred at the end of the Providence street line.

PACIFIC MILLS CLOSE, LEAVING 1,700 JOBLESS

Lawrence Shutdown Expected to Decrease Chance of Further Violence

Lawrence, April 8.—Seventeen hundred workers were thrown out of their jobs today when the Pacific Mills management admitted temporary defeat at the hands of the strikers and closed the plants.

In a formal announcement it was declared that the closing would be for an indefinite period.

It was expected that this action of the cool steps would decrease the likelihood of further violence.

Mills now closed by the strike are the Pacific, the Everett, the Plymouth, the Pemberton and the Methuen.

The Acadia the Monomac, the Kalassa, which have remained opened, are likely it was declared today, to follow the example of the Pacific mills and close down indefinitely.

Ben Legere, leader of the One Big Union, declared that the workers in the mills of the American Woolen Company would be urged to add to the present strike. Strike leaders have thus far kept away from the idea of a sympathetic strike.

Thomas J. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, has declared against sympathetic strikes or any strikes in mills that have not cut wages. The American Woolen Company has not announced wage reductions.

A successful strike in the Wood, Washington, Arlington and Prospect mills would bring the total of unemployed Lawrence mill operatives over 25,000. The One Big Union strength lies in these mills, where over 11,000 workers are now employed.

President McMahon was inclined to discuss the local strike situation in a manner which hinted that victory was coming to the workers soon. "Things are moving in the right direction," he said. "I have learned much during the time I have been away, but I am not at liberty to talk at present."

PHILADELPHIA BOY IS REAL MARTYR TO MUSIC

Philadelphia, April 8.—A real martyr to music has been brought to light by Miss Winetta L. Stacks, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Deaconess' Home here. Miss Stacks told of one small boy who confided to her that his fondest ambition was to play the flute. The teacher struggled in vain to teach this boy that he would pucker right. Finally the teacher said: "Joe, I guess you will never learn to blow a flute because of the way that front tooth has grown. It is the only thing." A few days later Joe's mother found her son's face bloody but shining with triumph. He had removed pliers and had pulled the tooth.

PHILADELPHIA TEACHERS MAY BOB THEIR HAIR

Philadelphia, April 8.—The Philadelphia Board of Education is worrying a little about a question that has agitated other communities, whether school teachers will be permitted to bob their hair if they desire. The matter rests entirely with the teachers and the pupils' ones with curtained locks need not fear dismissal, Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools, said today. All that was required, the superintendent declared, was that the teachers dress neatly and modestly.

NAME IS CHANGED TO PLEASE 'THE GIRL'

Hartford, Conn., April 8.—Sanford H. Quackenbush is about to be married. In the Superior Court the groom-to-be told Judge Kellogg that his prospective bride did not like his family name. He asked permission to change it to Horton. Rudolph Spletstoser told the court that people could not find the Hungarian name in the telephone directory and would spell the Family name correctly. He was permitted to take the name of Haines.

RADIO STATION TO RENT OUT SERVICE

Telephone Co. Will Put Broadcasting Apparatus at Command of Public

By A. B. HOAG.

The powerful broadcasting station of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in New York, which will be made a part of the Bell Telephone wire system, will be opened in a few days.

This station will be rented out by the hour to any person or organization that desires to hire it. Political campaign speeches, Broadway shows, wireless advertisements and dozens of other things will be broadcasted at any hour of the day.

By means of a connection with regular wire phones, the words of those many miles from the station may be broadcasted by wireless. Thus, President Harding, if the mood so seized him, could call the New York broadcasting station and, by using the phone on his desk, could broadcast a message to the 35,000 owners of receiving phones and all others who wished to listen in.

The charge for this broadcasting service will be ten dollars a minute. This rate is not arbitrarily fixed, says H. W. King, radio expert for the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, and may be even less.

The Bell Telephone Company will establish other broadcasting stations at important centers throughout the country as time goes on, similarly connected with the wire system.

NEW BOOK FOR BEGINNERS.

A valuable new book on radio for the beginner, by M. B. Sleeper, author of many other radio publications, has just appeared. It is called "Construction of Radiophone and Telegraph Receivers for Beginners."

The book deals with the construction of various sets and their practical operation, rather than with the theory of radio telephony, on the assumption that theory follows practice. A description of the construction of a loud-speaking receiver and amplifier should be especially interesting to the amateur who feels at the limitations of the ordinary ear phones.

WIRELESS NOVELTIES.

Wireless novelties, including traveling dogs and dolls controlled by radio, and a wireless automobile or tumobile will be some of the features of the Boston Radio Exposition to be held in Mechanics Hall, May 3 to 6, inclusive.

There will be extensive broadcasting demonstrations of unique apparatus and prize contest for amateurs. Fifty of the leading radio manufacturers, distributors, dealers and publishers have already reserved space.

SEES NEWSPAPER ACTIVITY.

Newspapers will do most of the radio broadcasting in the future, in the opinion of W. A. Terrell, chief radio inspector of the Department of Commerce in Washington.

Although his department is waiting for the formulation of definite rules and the allocation of wave lengths by the special commission which is now inquiring into the subject under the leadership of Herbert Hoover, Inspector Terrell says that his office has issued 92 permits for radio broadcasting to date and 52 applications are pending.

More than 15,000 licenses have been issued to operators and skilled amateurs. Exact figures as to the total number of radio instruments in use is not available, but it is estimated that there are more than 600,000, to which number hundreds are being added daily.

Among the licenses announced recently was one for the Detroit police, which was given the suggestive call-letters KOP.

LESSONS AT EAST ARMORY.

Special instruction in radio work is being given at the East Armory in connection with the National Guard Signal School. Under the direction of Lieutenant Zartarian, chief instructor of the school, a spark type sending and receiving set, a two-stage amplifier in connection with a crystal detector, and a complete long-wave CW transmitting set have been installed.

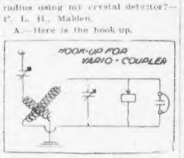
Question Box for Radio Fans

Note—Address all communications to the Radio Editor, Boston American, No. 40 Dunstan street, Boston. Sign your full name and address; only initials will be printed.

Q.—Will you please give me a book on consisting of the following apparatus, variocoupler, crystal detector, two variable condensers, and one fixed condenser. How far can I receive with this set? What is the wave length? If there any other apparatus I can add to increase my radius using my crystal detector?—F. L. H., Malden.

A.—Here is the hook up.



You can receive about twenty-five miles. The wave length will be around 360 meters. There is nothing you can add to a crystal detector to increase the range.

Q.—Would a loose coupler, primary wound with No. 18 copper wire and secondary with No. 22 copper wire be suitable for a radio phone? Will you kindly give me a hook up using a loose coupler, so that I could hear the Amrad station, H. H. P., Attleboro.

A.—Your loose coupler is O. K. You might be able to hear the Amrad station with a crystal detector, in which case the hook up would be similar to that shown below, substituting the loose coupler for the variable coupler. A better set would be made by the use of a vacuum tube, as described in Wednesday's paper.

Q.—1. How far will a .5% inch tuning coil with a 75-000 metal galena detector, and fixed condenser receive? 2. Does it matter if the leading wires are insulated from the aerial to set? 3. If leading wires are insulated does it detract from power of message if they are drawn through galvanized iron roof. —Which of the following hook ups is better—H. G., Boston.

A.—1. About twenty-five miles. No. 3. Yes, and may infringe the underwriters' regulations. 4. No. 2 is better because a variable condenser adds more tuning than the two-slide tuning coil. Another variable condenser in series in your primary circuit would make for even better tuning.

JOHN D. HOPES HE WILL LIVE TO 100

Rockefeller's Recipe for Old Age Includes "Don't Worry and Play Golf"

Following is the second of a series of three intimate pictures of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the multi-millionaire oil king, in the warm Florida sunshine. He goes about unguarded, sometimes in his shirt-sleeves like "Grandpa Smith"—and he expects to live to be 100.

By MILDRED MORRIS.

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

Worcester, April 8.—Edmond John D. Rockefeller plans to live one hundred years.

"The world is so full of interest, a man must live a long life to get it all," he says.

Here's the Rockefeller receipe for living to a ripe old age: "Don't worry"—eat simply and moderately, live a Christian life, and play golf."

By following this regime, he says he hopes to round out the century mark.

The man whose riches have made him a figure of lenend on two hemispheres, talks little of money. Wealth cannot buy happiness, he will tell you.

"Money brings happiness only when spent usefully and wisely," he says.

"Wealth should be regarded merely as an instrument to make the world better and happier."

At eighty-three what is his ambition?

"To live usefully," he answers.

The billion-dollar prisoner?

Here in this beautiful little Florida resort, the "billion-dollar prisoner," is free of his prison and radiates friendliness under the warming sun. No inaccessible fences and armed guards to keep him from the public, as at the great Rockefeller estate in Tarrytown.

It is on neighborly terms with John D. Rockefeller, pleasant old gentleman, who works about his garden in his shirt sleeves like Grandpa Smith.

The aged multi-millionaire roams at will. He chats with bellboys, the grocery man and the butcher.

"Plain as an old shoe—a nice old man," said the Ormond folks. The rich man whose name spells might in the financial marts of the world takes simple delight in simple things.

Golf, the birds, the flowers and the trees in his yard—these are subjects on which the great John D. almost waxes garrulous, forgetting to be thrifty of words.

Music is one of his great pleasures. His favorite pieces? He mentioned one to us—"Aloha."

THREE INDICTED AS SLAYERS IN DEDHAM COURT

Three indictments for second degree murder and one for intent to murder were returned with thirty-five true bills and five no bills by the Norfolk County Grand Jury in Dedham Court.

The murder indictments were as follows:

Nicholas B. Macheras of Brookline, charged with killing Thomas D. Plaklas in a restaurant at Coolidge Corner, Brookline, February 12, last.

Francis X. Mahoney of Brookline, charged with killing Alexander McGilroy in Brookline, December 21, 1921.

Julian B. Arthur, charged with killing John Burke Brody in Quincy on June 18, 1921.

Intent to murder Alex Chalaton and Drigony Dellindyk with a dangerous weapon in Needham on February 14, last, is charged to Steve Sakuota. All three are of Needham.

COAL STRIKERS ARE HANDED $30,000,000

Given Last Pay, Regarded by Union Officials as Fund for Mine Struggle

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, April 8.—Idle coal miners of the country, starting today and continuing next week, receive their last pay, estimated at $30,000,000 by union officials and regarded by them as a strike fund.

The big wage distribution, an important factor in the miners' ability to continue the general suspension of work that began a week ago on the order of the United Mine Workers of America, is for the final half of March—in all, 15 working days.

The big sum is several times the total cash of the union organizations—national, state and local—and comes to the miners with an indefinite period of idleness ahead of them. It is the only big cash payment that will come during the suspension, the union war chest not permitting any general strike benefits.

Payment of the wages was begun today in the Pennsylvania anthracite region and in parts of Illinois. Monday is pay day in Indiana and some other fields, but elsewhere it is as late as Friday.

Spring Find You Tired, Achy, All Worn Out?

Then Look to Your Kidneys! This Is a Common Condition in April and Is Often Due to Weakened Kidneys

DOES early Spring find you utterly miserable with an aching back? Do you get up lame and stiff—lag through the day feeling tired, weak, nervous and depressed? Isn't it time, then, you found out why you are so run-down—why you are so unable to enjoy the first fine days of Spring?

There is some good reason for your condition and more than likely it's weakened kidneys. Winter, you know, is mighty hard on the kidneys. Colds and chills, a heavier diet with less exercise, and less elimination through the skin, all throw a heavy burden on the kidneys. The kidneys fall behind and poisons accumulate.

It's little wonder, then, that Spring finds you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't be discouraged! Simply realize that your kidneys have fallen behind and give them the help they need. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, lighten the diet a bit, drink water freely and get plenty of outdoor exercise. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Boston Folks:

JAS. CASEY, 152 Clark Ave., Chelsea, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for lame back and a disordered condition of my kidneys. My back was so lame and sore that I could hardly get up when I was down. I had to void the kidney secretions too frequently, and they were painful in passage and scanty. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells. A couple boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills soon removed this trouble."

MRS. E. H. LEIGHTON, 11 Winthrop St., East Boston, says: "I value Doan's Kidney Pills very highly. I gave a public statement a few years ago, recommending Doan's and am glad to endorse them again at this time. Whenever I feel that my kidneys need strengthening I use Doan's Kidney Pills and feel better after taking them." (Statement given July 24, 1918). On February 4, 1919, Mrs. Leighton added: "Doan's Kidney Pills have certainly proven their value to me and I can't say too much for them."

4,000 AFFECTED BY CLOSING OF MONEY PLANT

Inventory to Be Taken and New Plates Made to Balk Counterfeiters

Washington, April 8.—Divisions of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, engaged in production of bank notes, bonds and postage stamps, will be closed tonight for an indefinite period for the purpose of taking an inventory of the plant from which James L. Wilmeth and twenty-eight chiefs, superintendents and foremen were removed by presidential order.

The bureau employs about 6,000 persons and it was estimated that about 4,000 of the total would be affected by the closing.

Decision to close at least the principal portions of the big plant, the largest of its kind in the world, was disclosed today at a conference between Louis Hill, newly appointed director, division chiefs of the bureau and treasury officials.

The inventory, it was said will be undertaken by treasury accountants and Department of Justice agents. Hints also were given that during the closing, the bureau would be further reorganized, or "Hardingized," as one official put it.

New steel plates will be installed to prevent counterfeiting of the various banknotes and bonds printed in the plant, as the old plates had become so worn that it was found that prints taken from them were comparatively easy to counterfeit.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend in need.'"—Mrs. Georgia Hansel, 1043 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.

SILVER tissue and silver lace—a favorite combination at the recent openings—is given a mediaeval air in Doeuillet's charming dance frock. The sleeveless straight corsage, supported by straps over the shoulders, is used for many of the newest gowns, being varied in this model by the application of an edging of silver lace.

ANOTHER version of the lace mode—a gown by Maison Valois—combines a jet black satin with royal blue lace. The lace is used in a slip, visible at the neckline and in a panel beneath the front opening of the gown, and makes the wide sleeves. A plaque at the front of the corsage and another at the centre front of the belt, each drips strands of wooden beads in royal blue.

NOVA SCOTIA'S UPPER HOUSE MAY QUIT

Legislative Committee Takes Steps Toward Abolition of Council

Halifax, N. S., April 8.—Everybody wants to get rid of the Legislative Council, or "Upper House" of the Nova Scotia Legislature, but there seems to be no way of doing so, E. H. Armstrong, Minister of Mines in the provincial government, late in the assembly of a resolution announced in the course of a debate that the council be abolished. The Legislative Council, an appointive body, fulfills in the provincial government the functions of a senate.

Since 1878, when the Assembly passed a resolution favoring the abolition of the "Upper House," efforts have been made frequently to make Nova Scotia a "one-chamber" province. Most of the Canadian provinces have a single legislative body. Quebec and Nova Scotia furnishing two exceptions.

A committee of five was appointed by the Assembly to study means to seal the Council's doom. It believed that an amendment to the British North American Act, the British statute under which the Dominion of Canada was constituted, will be necessary for the purpose.

MORROW CALLS SEMENOFF MURDERER

"Unscrupulous Enemy of U. S." and "Greatest Monster of All Times"

By Associated Press.

Frankfort, Ky., April 8.—Charging that General Gregorie Semenoff, refused in New York, "is a cowardly and unscrupulous enemy of America," and that as a murderer and robber he is the "greatest monster of all times," Colonel Charles H. Morrow, brother of Governor Morrow, has wired Secretary Hughes a summary of the anti-Bolshevik leader's alleged record in Siberia.

Colonel Morrow, who served with American forces in Siberia during the war, premised some of the alleged acts of General Semenoff while the latter was leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces.

Colonel Morrow said that one night when the Semenoff people seized 45 below zero Reaumur and arrested the American consul, among five soldiers and wounding many others. The soldiers finally were routed by the Americans.

"I consider that the greatest victory of the war in Siberia," said Colonel Morrow.

The telegram which Colonel Morrow sent to Secretary Hughes and members of the Senate said:

"I desire to advise you that General Semenoff in Siberia was the cowardly and unscrupulous enemy of America, conducting against the American troops through the press a propaganda of base slander and falsehood.

"The forces under his command were guilty of treacherous murder of American soldiers.

"He was known of all people of Siberia to be a murderer, robber, and his crimes were unspeakable, unpitiable, and beyond the conception of mankind. He is the greatest monster of modern times."

SEVEN PRESSING PROBLEMS UP AT GENOA

Reduction of Armies Among Questions for the Conference Opening Monday

Genoa, Italy, April 8.—The first movement since the war to reduce Europe's land armaments as a safeguard for international peace will be undertaken when the general economic conference of the powers opens here Monday. All the powers of the world with the exception of the United States will participate.

A number of Europe's best known Statesmen, including Premier Lloyd George of England and George Tchitcherin, commissar for foreign affairs in the Moscow Soviet government, are on the ground. Informal conferences will be held tomorrow. Nicolai Lenine will come to Genoa if his presence is needed and his health permits.

The conference promises to rank in importance with the Paris peace conference. This is the first time the allies have met the Russians in friendly debate over the issues which threaten Europe with chaos.

Among the nations represented are Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, Russia, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Poland and a number of the Latin-American countries.

Problems the statesmen will try to solve are:

1—Reduction of land armaments so as to reduce taxes and cut down government expenses.

2—Inflation of currency.

3—Balancing of budgets.

4—Reopening of Russia to foreign trade.

5—Assistance of Russia and Germany with credits on certain conditions.

6—Restoration of peace in the Near East so it can be opened up for commerce.

7—Creation of economic agreements to foster business relations between foreign belligerents.

SILOTI, TEACHER OF RACHMANINOFF, PLAYS

Alexander Siloti, teacher of Rachmaninoff, and pupil of Franz Liszt, himself sixty years old appeared with the Boston Symphony yesterday and thrilled and astonished the audience by his virile force, the power of his expression and execution as revealed by his great hands through the pianoforte, and his marvelous technique.

The Siloti performance of Liszt's paraphrase for piano and orchestra of the "Trio Irato" with Messrs. the concert master and Georges Laurent, flutist, was highly memorable while he played the Bach-Brandenberg concerto number five with marvelous tonal beauty and speech and brilliant technique.

The Rondo-ey was Sibelius, Number Five, excellently played and well applauded by a public which hasn't yet taken Sibelius to its heart.

ONLY 2,600 U. S. SOLDIERS NOW ON RHINE

Six More Units Quit Coblenz; 85 Wives and 28 Children on Transport

By the Associated Press.

Coblenz, April 8.—Six more units of the American forces in Germany said farewell to Europe today, 1,100 men and officers leaving Antwerp on the steamship Cantigny. Eighty-five soldiers' wives and twenty-eight children also sailed on the Cantigny, the largest number since the departure of the "Honeymoon Detachment" last May.

This reduces the strength of the American army on the Rhine to 2,600, or one-sixth of the number here a year ago.

Husband Never Took Bath; Wife Given Divorce

Providence, R. I., April 8.—James S. Grant, a prominent electrical contractor, according to testimony, washed his face and hands but seldom and never took a bath, in an effort to coerce his wife and compel her to live and to act in every way according to his wish and will.

The result of Grant's unusual experiment in "managing" his wife, a former high school teacher, was that she was granted a divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty.

4-MILE RELAY CAPTURED BY CAMBRIDGE

U. of P. Second, Oxford Third in International Classic Run at Queen's Club

London, April 8.—Cambridge won the four-mile relay race run at the Queen's Club today. The University of Pennsylvania was second and Oxford third.

Cambridge was in the lead at the end of every mile on the race. The order of the runners at the end of the first mile was: Mountain, Cambridge; Hewitson, Oxford; Herr, Pennsylvania.

At the end of the second mile Pennsylvania was second and Oxford third, the runners in order, being Tatham, Cambridge; Kerr, Pennsylvania; and Weekley, Oxford. After the end of the third mile the teams were in the same order, the runners being Somerow, Cambridge; McLane, Pennsylvania; and Braznor, Oxford.

At the finish Stallard of Cambridge led Brown of Pennsylvania by 50 yards, while Brown led Milligan of Oxford by 10 yards.

PAVLOWA OPENS AT OPERA HOUSE

Holy Week, with its lugubrious meaning for the show business, is upon us. Aside from Pavlowa, who opens at the Opera House Tuesday night, and the St. James, which revives "A Temperance Town," the dramatic bill of fare is slim. The Wilbur will be dark for another week, to open Easter Monday with Eleanor Painter and "The Last Waltz." And the same day "The Gold Diggers" comes to the Tremont.

Lots of Mothers Have Children Who Grow Fast

John Craig made a very amusing curtain speech after the second act of "We Girls" last Monday night. The audience laughed long and loud and then kept on applauding until they got speeches out of Mary Young and Juliette Day. Then they tried to get the authors to add to the fireworks, but Fred and Fanny Hatton had fled into Castle Square. It was a big night.

The story of the mother who passed her daughter off as a cousin so that her own age would not be suspected is not in the least improbable. I remember an opera singer of great reputation who passed off her son as her young brother. One fine day he eloped with a ballet girl, and gave his mother's name at the City License Bureau. All the papers carried the story that the singer had a son old enough to get married, and she took to her bed for a week.

Only American Plays for Provincetown Players

One of the tenets of the Provincetown Players is the refusal to produce anything but American plays. Their mission is to develop American playrights and to offer an opportunity for experimental playwriting. An author with a conventional play, that is a piece developed in the usual technical way, no matter how clever, does not interest the Provincetown company. They want something which is groping for new things and strange. Because of this ambition they have secured such pieces as "The Emperor Jones" and "The Hairy Ape," the latest New York hit.

Here is a company with the right idea. It has no endowment and struggles along as best it may. And on the other hand, we have in Boston a company of British actors, putting on British plays, and impudently asking that the Boston public should subscribe an endowment fund to make them a permanent Boston institution. I don't know what happens to American actors who offer Henry Jewett American plays for production, they don't get productions, that's certain.

Roshanara Responsible for Exotism of Goddess

The long run of George Arliss in "The Green Goddess" enters its last fortnight at the Plymouth. Arliss has always pleased Boston, but ever since "Disraeli" has he enjoyed so much box office prosperity.

A part of the charm of "The Green Goddess" is due to its singularly oriental atmosphere, and credit for this is due to Roshanara, who staged the piece. Roshanara, you will remember, appeared first in this country as a dancer, and gave at the Wilbur in Boston a series of matinees which are still remembered for their beauty, exotic loveliness and perfume of the scenes. Roshanara was a very graceful and intelligent dancer, and her knowledge of the true dances of India was remarkable in the extreme. She retired from the dancing stage two years ago, but I am informed that she will go out again next year as an Eastern dancer, with a company.

George Sidney Says the Play Makes the Actor

"I don't care how good an actor may be, if he doesn't get the play the public are bored to death with him," declared George Sidney. "You often hear actors saying it was a rotten part and a bad play but it made me go.

"If the part wasn't there the actor wouldn't make it go. Take it from me. The star of 'Welcome Stranger' stuff out his final curtain emphatically. 'Look at Frank McGlynn.' A few years ago who knew him until he played Abraham Lincoln.' And Frank Bacon isn't any better than he's been for many years, but lightnin' made him famous. Look at me. Well, don't if you don't want to, but I've been years for a part like 'Welcome Stranger.'

Dulcy Probably Wouldn't Live Long After Last Act

"Nothing succeeds like success," sounds like one of the original remarks made by Dulcy, but that particular bromide is not one of her lines. The press agent of the show uses it to explain the fact that the quaint character comedy is doing nicely at the Hollis.

Lynn Fontanne was asked the other day if she thought that Dulcy would have been able to keep her promise made at the end of the play to mind her own business and let her husband's affairs alone.

"No," she said. "I don't think she could keep it very long; but then she is such an idiot she might wander out into the street and get run over at any minute, so there's that.

Another de Lipsky Transformation Scene

Undoubtedly the most remarkable thing in the "Greenwich Village Follies" is the transformation scene, by which an interior set becomes a garden without the changing of any scenery; entirely by the use of lights.

This is done so quickly and quietly that the audience doesn't really appreciate that it is a miracle. The fact that both sets are in full view all the time, but one is rendered invisible by the use of a certain color lighting, and that peculiar coloring a great scientific discovery they do not seem to realize. But it is the outstanding feature of this year's show to discerning persons.

Therefore the fact that another transformation scene by the same Nicholas de Lipsky, who invented the Greenwich Village Follies scene, will be used in one of the Pavola ballets at the Opera House next week, is extremely interesting. In this case it is a Greek ballet, "Dionysus," in which the strange Lipsky lighting will work its miracle.

Conservatory Girl Is a Prima Donna in 5 Seasons

Ask any extra girl in musical comedy what is her ambition, and without exception she will tell you that it is to be prima donna of a production. A few girls achieve this goal after a period varying from seven to ten years "in the ranks." Most of them never reach the heights.

The record for a quick rise from extra girl to prima donna probably goes to Miss Eleanor Bennett, now singing the role of Yvette in "Some Girl," a headline feature of Shubert vaudeville the coming week at the Majestic Theatre, who became a featured prima donna three years after she played an unimportant role as extra girl. Miss Bennett, a Boston girl, five years ago was studying at the New England Conservatory of Music and applied with a number of classmates for the position as extra girl in "Love O' Mike," a Shubert show, seen here at the Wilbur Theatre. She was accepted and her work was such that when the play went on tour a speaking part was offered to her. Before the season had ended Miss Bennett had played and sung five in "Love O' Mike." A short dramatic season with William Collier in "Nothing But Lies" was followed by a tour in "Going Up."

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

A program, the like of which probably has never been excelled nor perhaps ever again will be equalled, is the offering at Loew's Orpheum Theatre for the week of April 10. The excellence of this program is the combination of a captivating comedy photoplay, "Beauty's Worth," in which Marion Davies, as a demure Quaker maiden, puts a permanent crimp in the snobbish youngster set's pet notions of superiority, and a stupendous vaudeville specialty recently acquired by the Loew's Incorporated called "In Argentina." In point of personnel, "In Argentina" is one of the largest acts in vaudeville. Nine gifted artists, eight of whom are natives of Buenos Aires, the other an American, a "nut" comedian, make up the remarkable company. The American, always trying to "mix," runs amuck of dances. Increasing trouble and between the musical numbers of the Genuine orchestra, which features the Argentine drum played with the fingers, he succeeds only in getting in the way. The many clever novelties, native songs and dances and the antics of our effervescent American tourist produce many hearty laughs. "In Argentina" and the delightful photoplay, "Beauty's Worth," featuring Marion Davies, will be shown the entire week.

Moon Well Trained in Beauty's Worth

A great, fat, jolly moon that follows every heroine pretty closely, but doesn't draw any salary, is one of the quaintest of actors in "Beauty's Worth," a delightful Quaint Comedy picture, starring Marion Davies. "Beauty's Worth," directed by Robert G. Vignola, will be presented at Loew's Orpheum Theatre the entire week, and the moon's performance is in the first act of a charade performance given at a fashionable seaside hotel. He plays in the first episode in which Columbine (Marion Davies) elopes with Harlequin. Later Moon rises slowly, and as the two characters go through their love scene, he winks his eye at the audience and purses his lips as if to say, "We know what you're up to, eh?" The settings in this interesting picture are the work of Joseph Urban. The story was written by Sophie Kerr, and was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed. A cast of notables played admirably beside Miss Davies. It includes Forrest Stanley, Antonio Moreno, Truly Shattuck, Hallam Cooley, Antrim Short, Thomas Jefferson and John and Gordon Tapley.

New Orleans Good Imitation of La Belle France

Little does an audience think while engrossed in the scenic beauties of a picture that is being unfolded before it of the tremendous cost in time, work and in money which may have been necessary to reproduce a single set of the picture, and which in all probability remained on the screen only a very short period of time, say possibly one or two minutes. Extensive and painstaking research work extending over a period of several months are sometime necessary as was the case in the filming of that wonder picture, "Monte Cristo," adapted from Alexander Dumas' famous story, and which is now playing at the Tremont Temple. Dumas wasted very little time with detailed description of commonplace scenes, thus, when Emmett J. Flynn, the director, desired to depict detailed and accurate descriptions of people and places of the France of the time of the story, he had to look elsewhere to get atmosphere and color. The public libraries were of little help, and it was necessary to journey to New Orleans to get all of the "Circle Francaise," whose wonderful collection of rare French etchings and prints made it possible to faithfully reproduce and visualize for the screen the France of the eighteenth century as it really existed, really appeared, and as it really lived at the time Dumas so vividly translated it to paper.

HEIFETZ IN STEINERT CONCERT

The last of the second series of Steinert concerts will bring Jascha Heifetz, the Russian violinist, for his last appearance of the season to Symphony Hall next Thursday evening. His program will be Tomaso Vitali's "Chaconne" (arranged by Leopold Charlier), Lalo's "Symphony Espagnol," Bach's "Aria," "Vivace" by Haydn-Auer, the "Hymn of the Sun," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or"; "Perpetuo Mobile," by Ries, and will close with Wieniawsky's "Polonaise in A major." Mr. Samuel Chotsinoff will play the accompaniments.

SWANSON AT LOEW'S STATE

A bill, showing two exceptionally fine photoplays wherein two of the best known and most popular stars of the screen are featured, is the offering at Loew's State Theatre for the week of April 10. The first of these super-pictures is "Her Husband's Trademark," Gloria Swanson's latest and truly greatest Paramount picture. It is a vivid drama of a man who, mad to possess millions, used his attractive wife as an outward indication of the wealth he did not possess, believing in the strange creed that a showing of money will attract money. Richard Wayne, who plays the leading man opposite Miss Swanson, makes his initial appearance as a star. The scenes are laid in two distinct locales, a fashionable New York home, and the romantic atmosphere of an old hacienda in Mexico. Many of the latter scenes were filmed below the Rio Grande on a Mexican rancho. The story is one of exceptional thrill while the situations at times are highly dramatic. Miss Swanson never has been seen in a more attractive role than in this sterling feature. The companion picture is "The Prophet's Paradise" in which Eugene O'Brien enacts the role of an American adventurer in Constantinople, who meets adventure through his attempts to rescue a beautiful American girl from the evil hands that would feature her as the prize chattel in a spurious slave sale.

McISAAC says that

"WE GIRLS" at Arlington is a delightfully different sort of farce, with remarkable roles for both Mary Young and Juliette Day. There is no flavor of stock to this production.

"GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES" continues to pack them in at the Shubert, a tribute to one of the swiftest yet cleanest revues of the year.

"EMPEROR JONES" at the Selwyn remains only another week. A weird and fantastic affair by Eugene O'Neill, offering a negro, Gilpin, a chance for remarkable acting.

"GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS" at the Colonial enters the last week. Ann Pennington heads the big cast.

"WELCOME STRANGER," with George Sidney, at the Tremont, also has the last week sign up. An amusing rural drama with a dash of Hebrew in it.

"DULCY," with Lynn Fontanne at the Hollis, is drawing large audiences, who enjoy the delightful foolery of the leading character.

GEORGE ARLISS in "The Green Goddess," will stay but two weeks longer with the cynical melodrama of William Archer, Plymouth.

"MONTE CRISTO," the Fox film at the Tremont Temple, continues to attract large audiences to the tale of Edmund Dantes and the motive of revenge.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Mildred Harris, formerly Mrs Charlie Chaplin, who achieved world-wide success in the movies playing opposite her late husband in his principal comedies, heads the first bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. From reports of her vaudeville debut this talented young woman is destined to repeat over the speaking stage her motion picture triumphs.

Supported by S. Miller Kent and Beatrice Morgan, two well-known stars of the dramatic stage, she will be seen in "Movie Mad," an appropriately titled one-act comedy by Edwin Burke.

Thelma and Marjorie White, new twinklers in stardom, the latest Broadway headliners, will make their first Boston appearance. They were "discovered" by Will Rogers, and would now be starring in musical comedy if the variety bookers had not snapped them up.

"SOME GIRL" MAJESTIC TOP

There have been some remarkable features offered on Shubert vaudeville at the Majestic Theatre, but it is doubtful if anything quite so attractive has been scheduled as the program for the coming week. The great big headliner will be a cameo musical comedy, "Some Girl," presented by Messrs. Shubert, the book by William Carey Duncan and Louis Simon, the music by Anselm Goetzl, the lyrics by William Carey Duncan, the numbers staged by Ja-k Mason, and all produced by Louis Simon.

Another feature will be Will Oakland, the noted contra tenor.

It is welcome news that patrons of the Majestic the coming week will see W. E. Ritchie in "Bits and Pieces."

Then there are Miss McKinnon, herself, presenting a cycle of songs; and Flying Russells and company, in a snappy variety, and the Shubert Weekly News.

"THE GOLD DIGGERS"

The attraction at the Tremont Theatre for four weeks beginning Monday, April 17, will be "The Gold Diggers," by Avery Hopwood, presented by David Belasco. This comedy comes from a run of two years in New York at the Lyceum, and several months in Chicago.

LYNN FONTANNE in "DULCY"···HOLLIS

BIG SINGER SHOW AT GAYETY

On a par with many successful comedy shows, and with specialties equalling some of the best acts in vaudeville, Jack Singer's big attraction, featuring the Lander Brothers, Harry and Willie, will be the burlesque attraction this week at the Gayety Theatre.

Supported by Ameta Pynes, May Walsh, Betty Fuller, Walter Austin, Jean Roth, Frank Gaines, Joe Forte and Bobby Storch, the Lander Brothers present a whirlwind of comedy stunts and small talk that constitutes burlesque of the first order.

The show's scenic effects, according to reports from other cities, are exceptionally bright and spectacular, the costuming is unique and attractive, and in the chorus is a bevy of lissom, comely young women, far above the average in burlesque choruses. Several metropolitan musical hits feature the musical score, especially is the show featured by interpretative and other forms of dancing and novelty numbers of rare originality.

McCORMACK

John McCormack, the great tenor, will make his final appearance of the season in two concerts of his own in Symphony Hall, on Sunday afternoon, April 23, at 2:30, and Tuesday evening, April 25, at 8:15.

GLORIA HAD TROOP AS ESCORT

Cavalry at Texas Fort Paid Movie Star Unusual Tribute at Dance in Her Honor

An entire troop of United States cavalry waited on Gloria Swanson to escort her to a "hop" at Fort Bliss, Texas, while the company making her Paramount picture, "Her Husband's Trademark," which will be shown at Loew's State Theatre the coming week was on location along the Rio Grande. Miss Swanson, after having traveled three hours by auto from location to camp, hastened to dress for the dance to be given in her honor, and when she was ready, the maid rushed in to tell her about the "fifty sojers" who were waiting to take her to the fort. At a loss to know just what to do, Miss Swanson decided to go with Richard Wayne, her leading man, rather than take a chance of offending some one of the militant escorts, and as she walked down the roadway, the soldiers fell in behind in dress parade order. At the dance she was the belle of the ball, and was so obliging in her efforts to dance with everyone that she was almost exhausted when she finally left for home, but happy because the others were happy.

Yankee Wit Turns Affont Into Humorous Incident

If you have had the good fortune to have been a tourist in some foreign land at some time in your life, or if contemplating some such trip in the not distant future, with your linguistic ability limited to that of your mother tongue, then pay a visit to Loew's Orpheum Theatre during the week of April 10 and see the difficulties with which one must contend in one's efforts to "butt in," so to speak, with the native and incidentally, how Yankee wit and shrewdness may stand you in good stead in turning what apparently seems an affront to the sensitive foreign nature into a humorous and joy giving incident.

"In Argentina," the act in question, is a stupendous vaudeville specialty recently acquired by the Loew's Inc., which in point of personnel is one of the largest acts in vaudeville. Nine gifted artists, eight of whom are natives of Buenos Aires, the other an American, a "nut" comedian," make up the remarkable company. The American, always trying to "mix," runs amuck of dances. Increasing trouble and between the musical numbers of the Genuine orchestra, which features the Argentine drum played with the fingers, he succeeds only in getting in the way. The many clever novelties, native songs and dances and the antics of our effervescent American tourist produce many hearty laughs. "In Argentina" and the delightful photoplay, "Beauty's Worth," featuring Marion Davies, will be shown the entire week.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" IN SOMERVILLE

Memorable Drama of Slavery Days Will Be Offered by "Players" at Davis Square

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," that memorable drama of slavery days, which has become a perpetuity of the American stage, will be the attraction to be presented by the Somerville Players at their popular Davis square playhouse for the coming week. This will be the first time that this famous play will have been presented in Somerville.

TESTIMONIAL PERFORMANCE

Next Monday evening at the Colonial Theatre has been delegated through the courtesy of Messrs. Erlanger, Dillingham and Ziegfeld, and George White, as testimonial night to accrue to Messrs. Ernest Grenier and Archie Birrell of the box office staff, on which occasion there will be presented a gala performance of George White's "Scandals," with Ann Pennington and the entire cast.

SCHUMANN-HEINK TOMORROW

Tomorrow afternoon in Symphony Hall at 3:30, Madame Schumann-Heink, called the greatest contralto singer of two generations, will make her only appearance of the season in Boston in a concert in which she will be assisted by Arthur Loesser, pianist.

EASTER "ELIJAH"

Mendelssohn's famous Biblical oratorio, "Elijah," has been chosen for the closing performance of the season by the Handel and Haydn Society, which takes place in Symphony Hall on Easter Sunday afternoon, April 16, at 2:30. Emil Mollenhauer is rehearsing the combined chorus and symphony orchestra in the impressive choral portions of the work.

SARG'S MARIONETTES

Tony Sarg will appear in person during the week that his Marionettes are showing at Steinert Hall, beginning April 17. During their twelve performances, six matinees and six evenings, the wooden headed actors will perform Thackeray's "Rose and Ring," Irving's "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Children's Hour."

CONAN DOYLE LECTURE

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the famous English author of "Sherlock Holmes" and many other books, is making a brief tour of America, and will deliver a course of two lectures in Symphony Hall on the evenings of April 24 and 26, entitled "The New Revelation."

COURTENAY COMING

Mr. H. F. Frazee will present William Courtenay at the Selwyn Theatre beginning Monday night, April 17, in Willard Mack's mystery play, "Smooth as Silk." Miss Charlotte Walker will support Mr. Courtenay in the cast.

FAMOUS HOYT PLAY AT THE ST. JAMES

"A Temperance Town" to Be Revised Next Week at Popular Back Bay Theatre

Next week at the St. James Theatre marks a new era. Director Masson will make his only appearance of the season in his old part of "Mink Jones" in the most celebrated of all New England plays, Hoyt's "A Temperance Town." Comedy, melodrama, farce, drama, satire, all in one, that sums up Hoyt's "A Temperance Town."

PAVLOWA

The final visit for this season of Anna Pavlowa and her Ballet Russe, on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is scheduled at the Boston Opera House, where she will have complete stage equipment for display of her scenery, costumes and effects for the first time here in several years.

The familiar work for Tuesday night will be "Amarilla," with which Boston is familiar. Following will be the new ballet, "Dionysus," in which the particular feature is the changing of entire scene without the movement of any part of the canvas or other material, the complete change being effected by a newly discovered use of different qualities of light.

"The Magic Flute," a memorable medium in the Pavlowa repertoire of eight years ago, will be the first part of the program Wednesday afternoon, followed by another novelty, "Fairy Tales," which portrays characters of Mother Goose and fairy lore, such as Princess Florina, the Blue Bird, Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, Puss in Boots and others in dance and pantomime, with Tschaikowsky's music.

The novelty for Wednesday night is "A Polish Wedding," embodying a quaint story of love and humor employing variegated costumings of various parts of Poland, with the folk dances of the same regions, set in picturesque surroundings of a Polish village, painted by Drabik, "the Polish Baker."

PONSELLE PROGRAM

The following program will be sung by Rosa Ponselle at her Symphony Hall recital tomorrow night, April 9. She will have the assistance of Stuart Rose at the piano.

FACTS, FADS AND FASHIONS OF BOSTON'S STAGE AND ELSEWHERE

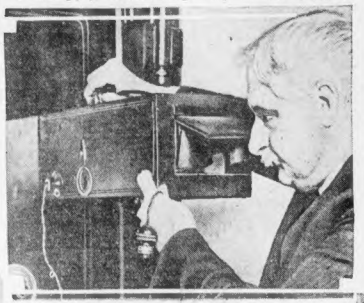
ROSA PONSELLE Swears by Her Back-Lane. When the famous songbird is out of tune she calls in a chiropractor. Dr. Harry L. Runge, prominent Boston practitioner, expects to keep her little vertebrae in line for the recital at Symphony Hall tomorrow.

LIGHT AND SHADOW! Vera Fokine is one of the most eye-pleasing interpretive dancers to grace a Boston stage. She comes to Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, April 18. Keeping in rhythm with the universe is her dance word. She will be surrounded by a talented company.

VALODIA VESTOFF makes a charming shepherdess. That's why lots of folks are flocking to the "Greenwich Village Follies," at the Shubert, where she and her staff of players are pleasing thousands.

"A LILY OF THE FIELD" and She Both Toils and Spins! Sylvia Field is the talented little actress who has made such an excellent impression in "Welcome Stranger" at the Tremont Theatre. It's an amusing play, well acted. George Sidney is the featured player.

MARY YOUNG, whose return to the Boston stage in "We Girls," at the Arlington, is delighting thousands of her old admirers. The entire New York production has been transplanted to Boston.



GEORGE BLUM, San Francisco police photographer, and his new finger-print camera, which will register color values in photographing finger prints. Said to be big aid in police work.

ESPANIA! Miss Anna Llamas of Aguascalientes, Mexico, picked as the most beautiful American-Mexican girl below the Rio Grande. She is a charming combination of Spanish witchery and American charm.

IT RUNS—IT DO! This is not a wreck, but a bona fide automobile, built by the quartermaster's corps of the American forces in Germany out of spare and odd parts supplied by the corps. Observe those shock absorbing wheels. Presented to Colonel H. H. Sheen, at the wheel. (Underwood)

SHE MAKES THE SPARKS FLY! Miss Marie Reith of the Bronx, New York, is the only woman electrical engineer in the employ of the Edison Company and one of the few in the country. Graduate of Cornell. Her duties are preparing costs of generating electricity in buildings compared with buying power from the Edison Company. (International News Reel.)

MISS MARTHA JANIGER of Chicago, daughter of a minister, who was rescued from a "white slave gang" by her father after she had been "sold" to a roadhouse. (International News Reel.)

"FLAP, FLAP, FLAP, THE CUTIES ARE MARCHING!" How dear to the flapper is the flop of her galoshes, so here, dear girls, is the last word in "flopping," an overshoe of one buckle, which, when worn open, has the appearance of a cavalier's boots. Boston is responsible for it.

COUNTESS DE NOAILLES, famous Parisian novelist, who, after severe opposition, has been elected a member of the Royal Academy of Sciences in Brussels. First woman to win honor. (Underwood.)

PLAYING THE GAME! One would expect the Turkish national game to be something hazardous and dare-devilish, but you'd be surprised. It's nothing more soul-stirring than lottoes, the game of our kid days. That's what these Turkish prisoners in a Greek detention camp are playing. (Gilliams.)

WHEN THE FLAMES LEAPED HIGHEST! An extraordinary photograph, showing the burning of the famous Church of St. Anne de Beaupre at Quebec. Some of the most sacred relics in the Western Hemisphere were housed in the edifice, which was a place of pilgrimage to afflicted ones. (International News Reel.)

TAKING TIPS! Best radio broadcasting device seized in a raid on a San Francisco bucket shop equipped with a station to receive stock tips from "one of the gang" stationed at an office having a direct wire from N. Y. (International News Reel.)

STEP ON IT! This new pedal-control was one of the features of the electric auto show, New York. Note the round heel-pedal close to seat. By shifting from forward control, on which foot is placed, to heel-pedal, driver can reverse at once without stripping gears. (Underwood.)

NO DESIRE TO EMBARRASS COX SAYS MAYOR

Writes to Governor, Regretting Latter's Inability to Give Attention to Boston

Mayor Curley thinks that Governor Cox failed to grasp the purport of his suggestion that the use of the State armories for memorial entablature purposes be made in memory of the World War heroes.

The Mayor in a letter of reply to Governor Cox also regrets that the Governor does not approve the plan which provides equality of honor to all who served and died. In closing the Mayor says: "I regret exceedingly that Your Excellency will no longer feel able to give time or attention to this great city and I sincerely trust that this attitude is merely temporary."

The letter, in part, is as follows:

NO WISH TO IRRITATE.

"Respecting as I do the high office Your Excellency occupies and understanding its functions, I would be sorry to have the Governor of the Commonwealth believe that the Mayor of Boston seeks to embarrass or hamper him in the discharge of his duties when he endeavors to secure a prompt remedy for certain exigent difficulties by what he conceives to be the most reasonable and direct method; and, in doing what he is persuaded is a plain duty in a plain and orderly fashion, he would deeply regret that his anxiety for the betterment of the city of Boston and its interests should be held an occasion of offence and irritation.

"I regret that Your Excellency fails to grasp the purport of the suggested use of the State armories for memorial entablature purposes. They constitute the permanent symbols of our State military service and are the meeting places of our military forces, and they furnish the housing and protection that permanent military memorials should have.

UNWORTHY MEMORIALS.

"It is not disputed that numerous cities and towns have set up memorials to the soldiers of this Commonwealth who served in the European war that squares and streets have been designated for some, and that other honors have been paid to this or that individual; but they are too frequently impermanent in character and unworthy of those who made the great sacrifice for the Republic.

"I regret that Your Excellency does not approve of a plan which provides equality of honor to all who served and died.

"The world forgets too easily. Already the veteran has to struggle for recognition of pledges made to him in days of stress. As the war recedes his difficulties grow greater; his demands are met with grudging reluctance; the urgings of his friends with suggestions of impropriety; pledges are met with petulance and greed pushes gratitude out of doors."

B. U. OFFERS PRIZE FOR MOVIE OF ITS HISTORY

Boston University wants a moving picture of its history! And it is to be written by a student at the university, or by a member of the faculty.

The university is offering a prize for the best scenario which will serve as a permanent record of the university's development and of its service to the community during the past fifty years. It is to be entitled "The Service of Boston University to Greater Boston, Past and Present." The competition is open to all students, faculty and graduates of the university, beginning April 11 and ending May 2.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Hundred Club Assemblies Brighten Lent for Buds

Miss Elizabeth Wells, the daughter of Mr. Wellington Wells of Bay State road, attends the weekly dances of the Hundred Club quite regularly. Miss Wells was snapped while helping at the recent Army and Navy bazaar.

ELIZABETH WELLS

By BETTY ALDEN

THE Lenten horizon, as sombre as usual in the way of dances, is brightened every Tuesday evening for the smart set by the weekly assemblies of the Hundred Club.

Needless to say, these affairs never fail to bring out a goodly portion of the "first family" contingent, and this, despite the clever duet sung by Mrs. John Thayer, Jr., and Gordon Means in "Why Not," the long-to-be-remembered musical comedy given last week by Boston's leading society folk.

The song I refer to was written by Robert Ware, and I quote in part as follows:

"Now you've been to balls at the Somerset,
And the Copley-Plaza, too,
They're lots of fun and we all know
They're quite the thing to do;
And though I'm a fiend for the dancing game,
It really makes me groan
To never find a face that's new, but folks I've always known.
CHORUS
"There's always bound to be the
Amorys, and the Coolidges, the
Emmonses and the shaws,
Each one is dancing with the other fellow's wife,
Comparing notes on kids and housecold
chores,
And if by any chance
You sit out a dance
Instead of gliding round the floors,
You always have to 'mose' with the Amorys, the Emmonses and the Shaws."

There were several other verses equally entertaining, all of which "brought down the house," including the "Amorys, the Emmonses and the Shaws."

But to return to the Hundred Club's weekly affairs de terpsichore. Ever since the early part of December, when the first Hundred Club dance of the season was given, society folk have flocked to the Copley-Plaza every Tuesday evening, each week finding more or less the same gathering of debutantes, undergraduates, "younger marrieds," and even a very goodly number of paters and maters.

Members of this exclusive club are looking forward to the mid-month dance, taking place on Tuesday, the 18th, for which Mr. Champagne has arranged a special program promising to be unusually attractive. These dances will continue on through April.

Miss Elizabeth Wells of Bay State road, who rarely misses a Hundred Club dance, was one of the girls helping this week at the two-day Bazaar of the Season, held by the Lest-We-Forget Committee of the Army and Navy Club at the clubhouse in Park square. Others of the younger set helping at the affair were the Misses Eleanor Hesseltine, Rachel Smith, Dolly Hollander, Betty Cole, Nancy Wheelwright, Ethel Cummings, Rebecca Hobbs and Mrs. L. Manlius Sargent (Elizabeth Williams).

The executive board of the Army and Navy Club will meet at the Marlboro street residence of Mrs. Barrett Wendell on Monday afternoon at 4:30, when the report of the bazaar committee will be read. I understand that a minimum of $1,500 was netted by the affair, which was attended not only by resident society, but by a host of notable army and navy folk.

Members of the executive committee include Frederick S. Whitwell, chairman; Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, honorary chairman; Alfred L. Aiken, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, vice-presidents; Allan Forbes, treasurer; and George R. Agassiz, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, Mrs. George R. Fearing, Mrs. Charles H. Fiske, Mrs. William A. Gaston, Malcolm S. Greenough, Miss Edith Jackson, James F. Jackson, Mrs. William Sturgis, H. Lothrop, Mrs. Charles S. Minot, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. Thomas Thacher, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Rear Admiral Henry A. Wylie.

A most unusual array of women's clothes, ranging all the way from rough tweed suits to soft, filmy evening gowns, may be purchased at the two-day "trash and treasure" sale, which continues throughout today at Horticultural Hall, in aid of the Massachusetts Girl Scouts.

A number of prominent matrons and young girls are serving as sales ladies. At the counter where dresses are being sold I noted Mrs. Frederic Tudor, Mrs. Cari T. Keller, Mrs. J. Pennington Gardiner and Mrs. Richard P. Waters.

Mrs. John B. Chamberlain offers a most alluring display of smart sport apparel, including mufflers, sweaters, scarfs, hats and quaint English print dresses with fetching bonnets to match. All the goods on this table are brand new, and were donated.

AMERICAN GIRL BETROTHED BY CHINESE RITE

Paris, April 8.—In the barbaric surroundings of Aimee Gouraud's salons, with huge gem-studded bodhas worth fabulous sums, looking down upon the ceremony, a unique betrothal rite was celebrated.

Roberta Acoff, divorced wife of David Joyce, of Chicago, "sister in divorce" of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, became engaged to Aimee's only son, Reginald, with all the rites of the ancient Chinese betrothal.

Roberta is nine years older than Reginald, but the engagement is reported by all concerned to be an "ideal love match" following a romance lasting twenty days. The young man saw Roberta at a dance palace. He demanded an introduction, and after that the couple were inseparable.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

A NUMBER of prominent matrons in charge of the bazaar which the Women's Cosmopolitan Club is holding today, from 2 until 10 p. m., at No. 585 Boylston street, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Sidney Hosmer, Mrs. James Purdon and Miss Rose Dexter are members of the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson of Brookline and Washington have as guest for a few days at their home in the capital Major-General Clarence R. Edwards of Boston.

Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley and Miss Charlotte Moseley of Beacon street have joined the Boston colony at Hot Springs, Va.

Also at Hot Springs is Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York and the North Shore colony, who will pass the Easter season at the Homestead. A number of Bostonians went on to New York to attend the brilliant ball which Mr. and Mrs. Whitney gave this Winter to present their debutante daughter, Miss Joan Whitney.

Miss Phyllis Robbins of Commonwealth avenue is visiting in Newport, where she is stopping at the Muenchinger King.

Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, sister-in-law of Princess Michael Cantacuzene (Chrissie Curtis) was present at the dinner given in Washington by the Ambassador of Belgium and Baroness de Cartier for the latter's niece, Miss Betty Connolly, in honor of Miss Katherine Mackey. The company further included Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, Miss Grace Vanderbilt and Miss Anna Hamlin, the latter a member of the Chilton Club here.

Rear Admiral William S. Sims has concluded his visit to Boston and has returned to the War College in Newport.

MARION DAVIES in "Beauty's Worth"

This Beauty Formula Succeeded Long Before Cleopatra Vamped Tony

The beauty formula of this Quaker girl consists of nature's cosmetics—jealous society mocked her—the man she adored snubbed her—but the natural red of her lips and cheeks got across with the fellow who knew.

In "Beauty's Worth" a little wren of a girl suddenly becomes a bird of paradise, triumphing over her patronizing rivals.

NASH CAR DID BIG BUSINESS IN MARCH

Quality and More Being Steadily Added to Product, Says C. P. Rockwell

"We did the largest retail business in the sale of new Nash cars for the month of March than for any other month since we have been in business," says C. P. Rockwell, of C. P. Rockwell, Inc., Boston and New England distributors of Nash motor cars.

"This steadily increasing business can be traced directly to the fact that more and more the motoring public realizes the increasing value Nash cars represent and appreciate our method of servicing them.

"Quality and more quality is consciently being added to the Nash product. A good car is being made better. To give a better car at the same price is the determination of the entire Nash organization.

"Another feature," says Mr. Rockwell, "which indicates the nation-wide is this recognition of Nash values, is the fact that the recent compilation of figures, which indicates that the Nash Motors Company with five others build 34 per cent. of all the cars made in this country."

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a 1917 Buick Four and every time I have the gears meshed no matter what speed, there is a grinding noise. The noise is ever present, but particularly on a right turn. I feel that it must be in the differential, but cannot locate it.—L. J. W., Holyoke, Mass.

This sounds as if your axle or pinion-shaft bearings were worn, which make your gears out of mesh. It will be necessary to have those bearings replaced.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Would like a little information in regard to changing a 1915 Four Touring car (hood) to one of recent date. I want to give that car a good effect. Can I do the work myself; I am somewhat of a mechanic? What new parts will I have to get? I figure that I will have to get radiator shell, hood and side pieces, front mud guards and long hinges for the running board. Am I right in opinion?—E. S., 3 East Boston, Mass.

Answer: Give us the name of the car, as we would like to have a better idea of what you wish to do.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a 1919 Dodge truck. The engine in it is very good, but the only trouble in it is when I try to examine the carburetor leaks gasoline. It does not seem to work right. Will you please tell me what I can do to stop the leak?—A. F. P.

Put a new gasket on each of your float valve chamber, also a new gasket on carburetor cover. Then turn the valve on its seat and clean out the gasoline strainer. Also make sure that your float does not leak.

If there is an airhole in it. It will not keep its shape and sink to the bottom of the float valve open, causing your carburetor to leak when the motor is running.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Where can I get used or new parts for 1917 Interstate? Want crank-case.—A. M. Jeffries, Boston.

Write to the Puritan Machine Company, Detroit, Mich.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a 1917 Ree Tourer car, and I have had the starter and battery recently overhauled. But the car will start, that is, turning over with the starter. It is very slow. At times it will start, but don't work as they should. I tried this with a new battery, but it works in the same way. Sometimes my starter refuses to turn over until I turn the engine over with the crank for a turn by hand. Please advise me in this matter.—H. W. Lynn, Mass.

In a machine that is old as this, it is possible that the packing on your water pump is allowing water to drip into crank case. Also, if the packing is too tight on the cylinder walls, would cause considerable difficulty in turning your motor over. You also have had your motor overhauled since your arrival on your starter so that an improper adjustment of the same would cause you trouble. Would suggest that you take your car to some service station where you feel confident to overhaul it yourself.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Would you kindly answer some of my questions? I have a 1920 Maxwell and it runs as if it were running on three cylinders. Sometimes it runs all right and I had my carbon taken out and valves ground and it runs like a new car. So would you please let me know what ails it, for I would like to know.—H. M. Hingham Mass.

It is impossible to answer your question in your high speed and pocket gears in your transmission without knowing the number which makes it seem as if your motor were running on three cylinders. If these gears are worn it will be necessary to replace them.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I am a reader of your column and I would like to know if it is possible to take out the transmission in a starter's drive for wages and I am not old enough for a chauffeur's license, successfully and do not own the machine.—I AM INQUISITIVE.

You can take the examination for operator's license, but we are no longer sure we could not drive the truck unless you had a licensed operator with you in the machine when driving.

Says a Police Whistle Is More Effective Than a Revolver, but Not for Holding Up a Bank

Somebody is trying to pass a national law making it a crime to carry a revolver. This is foolish. In case of trouble you can't wait to have it sent to you.

This guy figures that by prohibiting revolvers it will lessen the danger of hold-ups, and it will. The stick-up men won't be taking so many chances of getting shot.

If we take the revolvers away from our citizens it will be more humane to the thugs.

Then they'll be able to get our revolvers, and they need them. Some burglars are going around town right now only armed with two or three guns.

The law ought to be fixed so that if a hold-up man finds a gun on his victim he can have him arrested.

This bird says that a police whistle is more effective than a six-shooter. Maybe it is, but nobody ever saw a gang of bandits holding up a bank all at one point a whistle.

The only difference between a whistle and a gun is that you blow your head off on one and the bandit blows your head off with the other.

The police whistle is the most humane thing of all. As soon as a cop hears it he knows there's trouble and it's up to the citizens to warn him.

If he didn't know there was trouble somewhere around he might walk right into it.

The law won't even let you carry an unloaded gun—you might frighten the hold-up men, anyway.

A burglar is willing to take his life into his own hands, but he's not going to let you take it into yours.

In spite of these facts this new law in very liberal; it allows a policeman to carry a revolver, provided he uses it on the right person. It means that he must never shoot at a bandit, unless there's nobody else around.

He must not shoot anybody until he's sure he's a crook. If the cop doesn't know the thug personally he should go and get somebody to identify him.

There's no sense in passing this new law. Just let things go along as they are for another year and there won't be any more hold-ups. The burglars will have all our money by that time.

OPPOSE $13.75 WAGE FOR WOMEN

Opposition to the proposed minimum wage of $13.75 per week for women and girls employed in the manufacture of muslin underwear came from several employers in the industry at the hearing before the Minimum Wage Commission, following the hearing on the retail store wage recommendation.

The new scale recommended by the Muslin Underwear Wage Board is to supersede the previous scale of 43 per cent. which went into effect August 1, 1918.

A. F. Powers of Boston, a manufacturer, protested against the new scale, claiming that the wages of girls under eighteen years of age should not be increased, which is also recommended by the wage board. Others who spoke against the proposal were H. H. Rusk of Malden, C. Samuels of Boston and Bowen Gordon of Cambridge. All contended that business conditions do not permit of incread wages at the present time.

The matter was taken under advisement.

BIGGER NAVY FIGHT OPENS MONDAY

By Universal Service.

Washington, April 8.—The fight for an adequate navy will open in the House of Representatives next Monday.

The appropriations subcommittee completed its draft of the "small navy" appropriation bill for the next fiscal year. The measure provides for an enlisted personnel of 87,000 men.

The measure will be submitted to the full appropriations committee today. House leaders who are behind the "small navy" movement want the full committee to approve it with the understanding that the issue will be fought out on the floor.

The bill will be reported to the House today and will come up for consideration starting Monday.

FALL RIVER MAN KILLED UNDER COLLAPSED WALL

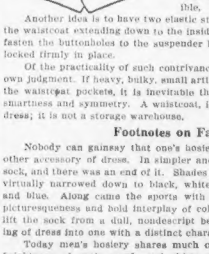
Fall River, April 8.—Thomas Wilson, fifty-six years old, of No. 49 Smithies street, was killed almost instantly when a brick wall about twenty-five feet of a wall which collapsed during construction. Three other laborers had narrow escapes from death. Wilson was working for the first time in several months.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By ALFRED STEPHEN BRYAN

Down With the Waistcoat!

New York, April 8.—It's a smooth waistcoat that knows its place and keeps it. A man's waistcoat seems to have an uncontrollable curiosity to rise and see the world.



Various and ingenious are the devices adopted to prevent one's waistcoat from parting with the top of the trousers, and here are some of them:

A narrow strip of elastic is sewn to the back of the bottom of your waistcoat, where it is unseen, of course. This strip is provided with a series of buttonholes which engage with the buttons of the trousers, thus keeping waistcoat and trousers one-and-indivisible.

Another idea is to have two elastic strips sewn upon the inside of the waistcoat extending down to the inside suspender buttons. Simply fasten the buttonholes to the suspender buttons and the waistcoat is locked firmly in place.

Of the practicality of such contrivances every man must form his own judgment. They're heavy, bulky, small articles are habitually carried in the waistcoat pockets, it is inevitable that the garment will lose its smartness and symmetry. A waistcoat, if you please, is an article of dress; it is not a storage warehouse.

Footnotes on Fashion

Nobody can gainsay that one's hosiery is two feet ahead of any other accessory of dress. In simpler and stalder days a sock was a sock, and there was an end of it. Shades were virtually narrowed down to black, white, tan and blue. Along came the sports with their picturesqueness and bold interplay of color to lift the sock from a dull, nondescript belonging of dress into one with a distinct character.

Today men's hosiery shares much of the brightness of one's scarfs and shirts, being almost as ornately colored and patterned.

Perhaps the greatest advance in hosiery was intermixing wool with silk—wool for warmth, wear and absorbance and silk for lightness and comfort.

Pictured alongside is one of these silk-and-cashmere socks executed in a dice or checkerboard pattern which looks loud, but isn't, because contrasting colors are artfully blended and softened.

Full-fashioned, hand-clocked wool hose, Derby-ribbed, and socks of Scotch brushed wool for field wear come in heather intermixtures, Lovat, brown, gray and blue.

NOTE—Questions concerning Correct Dress for Men will be answered by Alfred Stephen Bryan, if addressed to him in care of this newspaper. To insure a reply, a stamped envelope must be enclosed.

CHALMERS SIX, NEW SERIES, WINS PRAISE

Low Upkeep and Slow Depreciation Claimed for This Popular Car

"The new high point in the advancement of good six cylinder construction as registered in the New Series Chalmers Six, together with its beautiful body design, clearly establish its genuine worth as an investment in transportation," says E. Fay, local Chalmers dealer.

"Boston motorists had their first glimpse of the New Series Chalmers when the car was shown by the C. F. Fay Company at the Boston automobile show, and the great favor that the car gained there continues to be in evidence.

PRAISE WELL EARNED.

"The high praise paid its beauty is well earned. No car in or near the Chalmers group can compare with it in appearance. From the name plate on its new, aluminum beaded radiator shell to its strong wheel carrier it is distinctive and individual. The car is low and perfectly tailored. The elimination of all visible bows not only gives the impression of greater length, but allows clear vision for tonneau passengers.

"The Chalmers, with its mass and length and low compactness, is efficient in appearance, and performance well bears out the impression of power its appearance gives.

12-INCH ROUNDED SET.

"Drum type head lamps, nickeled, outside door-handles, rubber footmats and kick pads on the running boards, and a dull, satin finish moulding around the top of the body serve to round out completely this new beauty of the Chalmers.

"The wonderful six-cylinder Chalmers motor has long been famous and has made possible Chalmers reputation for low up-keep and slow depreciation.

"When the purchase of an automobile is placed on a business basis, cost of maintenance and depreciation charges are items which must be thoughtfully considered. And when a compilation of Chalmers costs is made in comparison with other cars, it will be found that Chalmers is an automobile investment value that cannot be paralleled."

This afternoon more than a half-hundred runners will dash along city streets and highways. Today is the day of the annual ten-mile handicap road race of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. It will start at 3 p. m. There are fifty-six entries. It's the twelfth annual renewal of this athletic classic.

Manager Walter Dullea announces that there is a change in the course. This is because of the difficulty in handling the crowd at the finish and to do away with the automobile nuisance.

Instead of turning into Harrison avenue from Union Park street the runners will continue on Union Park street, Albany street, thence to Herald street, Massachusetts avenue, to Edward Everett square, Columbia road to Blue Hill avenue, to Morton street, turning at Morton street and returning by the same route. Manager Dullea will not allow any automobiles except official cars to remain on the course to the finish, but they will be turned at the junction of Union Park and Waltham streets.

The entry list, the largest field in years, follows:

Emilio Mollasi, Adrian Club.
A. J. Stanley, M. Phillips A. A.
James Burke, Lasell Seminary.

PHIL LOGAN DEFEATS GENE DELMONT IN TEN

By Universal Service.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 8.—Phil Logan of Buffalo defeated Gene Delmont, the Memphis flash, in ten rounds. Logan carried the battle to the Memphis boy, and gave him a terrific beating, having him groggy in the fifth, seventh and tenth rounds.

Delmont's continual holding saved him from a knockout.

This was Logan's fifth straight victory.

CROWD BOOS WHEN LEAHY IS AWARDED THE DECISION

Worcester, April 8. — Tommy Leahy of Worcester was given a very questionable decision over Sailor Tyrell in a ten-round bout in Mechanics Hall. After the decision the crowd booed Leahy and cheered Byron. It was announced before that bout that Leahy would next fight Johnny Clinton.

COLLEGE RIFLE TEAMS IN TRIANGULAR SHOOT

The triangular shoot among the Boston University, Georgetown and Yale rifle teams will be held today, the Boston University team shooting at the Bay State Rifle Range. Georgetown will shoot in competition with Yale, and the Boston University and Georgetown teams will shoot off the tie in which their last match resulted. The score now stands 500 to 500, and in case the first five men have a perfect score, as in the first competition, the scores of the sixth, seventh and eighth men will be counted.

NEW ENGLAND STARS IN PENNSYLVANIA'S BIG RELAY CARNIVAL

New England will be better represented at Pennsylvania's relay carnival than ever before. Yale, Harvard, Boston College, Boston University, Northeastern, Engineering School, Technology, Brown, University of Maine, Colby, Bowdoin, Bates, New Hampshire State, Holy Cross and Dartmouth will all have teams in the championship relays, the class relays or the special events. Exeter, Brookline, Medford, Bridgeport, Hartford, Lynn English and the St. James School of Haverhill will be in the scholastic events.

A glance over what the above colleges expect to do will be interesting. Yale is the favorite for the two-mile relay championship, when honor it now holds. With Douglas, Vanderpyle, Campbell and Hilles to run in the two-mile, the Blue has two men in Douglas and Campbell who will do one minute fifty-five seconds or better.

Campbell has a record of one minute fifty-four seconds, while Campbell showed his mettle this Winter by winning the 1,000-yard American indoor championship in the Garden.

Yale hopes to make a new world's record in this event. In Pennsylvania, Cornell, Penn States and Georgetown it will have opponents of equal strength, and a wonderful race should result.

Harvard Should Have Fine Medley Team

Harvard should have a very fine team for the distance medley relay championship, with Burke, their great miler, as anchor man. Burke is the miler who defeated the Cornell milers in their indoor meet last month, and he has a record of four minutes nineteen seconds for the distance.

Technology has an excellent one-mile team. They defeated the Syracuse team last month, which of itself speaks in no uncertain tones. The engineers are centering all their strength on that event and will not give Syracuse and Princeton a battle all the way.

Dartmouth is as yet uncertain as to the relay championships in which it will enter. On the 3-mile relay it should be in the high school championship races, and they have shown against the best Winter that their teams are very fast. They have as good a chance for honors as any other school.

Bridgeport is a newcomer, but at the recent indoor games it made a remarkable showing. Exeter will as usual be prominent. They will run a one-mile relay team in the school championship and also in the intercholastic medley relay championship, in both of which they have very good chances to win out.

Also Strong and Fast in the Special Events

In the special events New England will be strong. Baker of Bates, the winner of the two-mile international last year, will again be in that event. He will be a hard man to beat. The Brown boys of Conell will see to it that he goes all the way, but that is just what Baker likes, as he showed last year when he won a wonderful race in the very fast time of 9:25 2-5.

Brown, of Harvard, the international winner in the hammer throw against Oxford-Cambridge, will be the favorite for that event. Lund, of Bowdoin, has thrown the hammer 150 feet and will compete. Brown will also shine in the shot and discuss.

Libby of Dartmouth, the intercollegiate pole vault champion, and Brown, his teammate, the high jump champion of intercollegiate record holder at 6 feet 4½ inches, will be favorite for those events, while the world's champion Worthington of Dartmouth will be counted on to win the high hurdle event.

Davis of Harvard and Gardner of Yale should also do well in the pole vault. Whitney of Harvard who once beat Bacom of Penn State indoors last Winter in the hurdles will be watched carefully in that event.

In addition there will be quite a number of other high-class performers in the special events so that New England will be sure to get her share of honors and also help along in the general excitement of the day.

College Champions of Indoor Season

Following is a list of champions produced by the intercollegiate indoor sport season:

Basketball—Princeton.
Hockey—Boston College.
Fencing—Navy.
Swimming—Yale.
Water Polo—Princeton (intercollegiate); Navy (collegiate).
Polo—Princeton.
Gymnastics—Navy.
Wrestling—Cornell (intercollegiate); Navy (collegiate).
Boxing—Army and Navy (both claimants).

FIRST ARMY POLO GAME AT ARMORY ON APRIL 15

The first army game of polo will be played April 15 at the Commonwealth Armory.

The competing teams are Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., represented by Cadets White, Goodyear, Hayes and 101st Field Artillery, National Guard of Massachusetts, represented by Colonel Wilkinson, Major Furber and Lieutenant Pitman.

The judge will be a Lieutenant Colonel, polo officer of the First Corps Area.

BASKETBALL CONTEST TONIGHT FOR FIELD DAY

The Watertown town team will play the Boston All-Stars at the Town Hall, Watertown, tonight. Watertown officially closed its season with a victory over St. Mary's C. A. of Cambridge at Watertown Wednesday night. The game tonight is in aid of the annual field day of St. Patrick's Church of Watertown and the players of both teams have volunteered their services. There will also be a second game between the Watertown second team and the Watertown High School alumni.

SOUTHPAW GOLF PLAYER WINS FROM YATES

Michael Thomas of Nashville Beats Rochester Man in Second Round

By Universal Service.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 8.—Arthur Yates of Rochester, N. Y., medalist in the qualifying round, was defeated by Michael Thomas of Nashville, Tenn., in the second round of match play in the North and South amateur golf championship. Thomas won by two up.

The Nashville left handed expert was one down when play was resumed at the ninth hole, after being interrupted by rain, but he got on even terms at the tenth by winning a four. The play dilly-dallyed up to the thirteenth hole, where Yates took a four to Thomas's three, making the latter one up.

The long seventeenth was halved in sixes, leaving Thomas one-up and one to go. The match ended on the home green, where Thomas got a five, drawing a badly topped second shot, while Yates, trapped on his second shot and just out on his third, took three more to get into the cup.

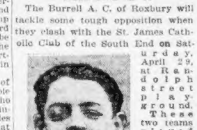
Henry J. Topping of Greenwich, Conn., won a great match from E. L. Stanton of Stamford, Conn., runner-up to Yates in the qualifying round, at the twentieth hole by one up. He will be opposed in the semi-final round by Thomas.

W. G. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, former national champion, and Fillmore S. Robeson of Rochester, a former North and South champion, came through to the semi-finals in the other bracket. Fownes defeated Harold Weber of Toledo, two and one, while Robeson had a five t ofour victory over Donald Parson of Youngstown.

Diamond Stars After Dates

BURRELL A. C.

The Burrell A. C. of Roxbury will tackle some tough opposition when they clash with the St. James Catholic Club of the South End on Saturday, April 29, at Ripley and Appleton streets. These two teams played together in games last year. The St. James team will be stronger this year than last. The Burrells will depend upon the same men who played together last year.



The batteries for the game will be: Burrell A. C., Domo and Monahan; St. James, Murphy and Winhan. The St. James' have some of the hardest hitting players in the amateur ranks. The Burrells will not lack batting strength, as they have Curry batting fourth and Hoyle, a dangerous man, following him.

CANTON BRAVES

The Canton Braves issue a challenge to any amateur teams that will give a fair guarantee, April 19 open. Write or phone Joseph Crowly, Pond street, Canton. Telephone Canton 124-W.

SARATOGA MIDGETS

MAPLETON A. C.

The Mapleton A. C. of Brighton challenge any fourteen-year-old uniformed team in Greater Boston. Write Alfred F. McGinn, 29 Mapleton street, Brighton.

ROSARY CUBS

The Rosary Cubs of South Boston challenge any 14-15-16-year-old uniformed team in Greater Boston. Would like to hear from Sacred Heart A. C. of Cambridge. Write to Charles Hanlon, 179 D street, South Boston, or phone South Boston 2802-W.

SCARBORO CLUB

The fast Scarboro Club challenges any 14-17-year-old team in New England. Return dates given and expected. Address Manager M. Sherwin, 35 Lorne street, Dorchester, Mass.

MILTON ACADEMY MEETS LATIN SCHOOL TODAY

The opening game of the schoolboy baseball season will be seen Boston Latin and Milton High nines engaging on the Milton Field today.

Both teams have about half their 1921 team and although neither has had much practice as yet, as a comparatively close game is expected.

Coach Nash of Milton Academy has a seasoned battery to send out after the honors in the opening game. Boston Latin is just as fortunate as Harris, the pitcher, and Condon, the catcher, did service on the Purple and White team last year.

If Harris is not up to his stuff Andrews will relieve him. Other Latin infielders who will be given a chance are Elton, Donaghy and Harkins and the outfielders, Henry, Rossman, Panico and Kyle.

RUTH HAS HOME RUN, BUT THE YANKS LOSE

Brooklyn Wins Its Eighth Game in Eleven From the Bambino's Teammates

By Universal Service.

Richmond, Va., April 8.—A home run by Babe Ruth and general hitting by the Yankees failed to keep them from again losing to Brooklyn, 4 to 3.

The American League champions fell on Burleigh Grimes, the Brooklyn ace, in the first inning for a flock of hits and three runs, but thereafter Grimes and Gordinier, a youngster, who relieved him, held the New Yorkers in check.

The teams went into the ninth tied at 3 all, but with two out, singles by High and Johnston and an error by First Baseman Pipp, let the Brooklyns get the winning tally. Two errors by Bob Shawkey, the New York hurler, were also converted into runs during the game.

It was Brooklyn's eighth victory in exhibition games. The clubs will play three more games before the season opens.

Paris Paper Says Money Will Be Wasted in Having 1924 Olympics

Paris, April 8.—"The Olympic games in 1924 will not attract the number of visitors anticipated. They cost too much money. Such games have not been a success financially." Such are a few of the remarks La Petit Bleu, a Republican newspaper, has to hand out to the organizers of the 1924 games in Paris. For months a controversy raged in France and particularly in political and municipal circles, as to whether France and Paris could meet the obligation undertaken at Lausanne to stage the world's games in the French capital. First, money was not forthcoming, then no suitable ground could be found around the city, and finally it was thought that little interest would be taken in the games in France.

All this despite the fact that France asked to have the next series of games and that this country prides itself with becoming the leading athletic country of the world.

Several offers of ground were made to the municipal council and important sums of money were offered, but internal and party politics prevented their consideration. At last the government had to take the matter up and it pointed out that it insisted that the games given France should be held either in or near Paris.

La Petit Bleu, however, is the biggest opponent to the games being held here and it finds that Paris has quite enough to do with its money in repairing its streets and in paying interest on foreign loans before launching out to spend 29,000,000 francs "to see a lot of young men run themselves out, their legs in front of an empty grandstand and bare benches."

LEXINGTON GOLF CLUB WILL HAVE SEASON CUP

As in other years, a season's trophy will be played for by members of the Lexington Golf Club in six monthly rounds. The first round will be played on April 29, and the final round will be staged on October 12. A president's trophy will be another feature. The qualifying round will come on May 20.

When a Girl Marries, A Serial By Ann Lisle

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Friendship and Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

DON'T consider this man as a friend. Any girl must know for once of the man who thinks of marrying than not interested of the man. Remain on neutral ground regardless. Don't do as you suggest. Men often make a little love to a girl who attracts them, and see no harm in it

What Odds?

"Look here!" cried the diner, "is this apple tart or plum tart?"

"What's the odds, sir," replied the waiter, "what on earth does it matter sir, which it is?"

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

A "cock and bull" story is the term of an impossible tale. Many ingenious explanations have been suggested, but the most reliable dates from Matthew I. on record. The Cocks and Bulls are foxes and fillies. Idle tale and foolish rabbles.

Interesting tests determined the respective pulling power of horses, mules and elephants. Two horses will pull 1,000 pounds apiece, two mules 1,200 pounds apiece, two elephants 1,400 pounds apiece. Thus we see that the elephant is the strongest of the three.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Those who can always foretell by studying quotation charts what the stock market will do next, declare cocksurely that we are entering a genuine bull market, which promises to continue for quite a long time. My own timid opinion is that the long swing should be upwards, not downwards, but that popular interest will by and by veer away from high-grade bonds to good railway stocks and preferred industrial stocks, then to more speculative common stock.

Let me confess, however, that I have less faith in charts and past performances than I have in common sense and business prospects in trying to reason out what the security markets will do. Have you known many or even any of these chart fiends who were able to roll up fortune fortunes by putting into application the wonderful knowledge they imagine they derive from their paraphernalia?

"Matt is a funny kind of executive," remarked an intimate associate of Matthew C. Brush, the senior vice-president of the American International Corporation, who is rapidly building up a wonderful organization by the ability to straighten out financial and business tangles and get things done.

"He has let everybody else in the organization know that anything and everything which nobody else cares to do, he put on his desk. In consequence a few things have been put on his desk by everybody, from the president down. And the amazing fact of it is that he finds time to attend to them all. It does take him a good many more than eight hours a day to do it, and he hasn't been able to get off the chair a single day, with the exception of one week's vacation recently, since the war began."

He is getting ready to leave for Europe, but he has planned to do so much in four weeks that most men would take four months to cover."

As Matt Brush is only forty-five, my guess is that before many years he will tower up as one of the leading business giants in the country.

Have you noticed an unusually large number of new automobiles, both low-priced and high-priced? I have never before seen so many new cars before as there are today in and around New York.

Hero-worship is not dead. Most of us are children when it comes to that. And Wall Street is just as children on this score as other towns. One day this week a young man entered the Curb market and strolled over to the place where a certain stock is traded in. Immediately there was an outburst of tremendous excitement. The cry "Jack Livermore is here" rang throughout the building. Everyone was willing to suspend business in order to catch a glimpse of this youthful speculator. The mere presence at this particular spot was accounted sufficient reason for starting a wild buying of the stock.

At the moment Jesse Livermore is the idol of the gamblers in Security. He has become a figure, a personage, a magnate almost. I was going to add, a myth. In boyhood days I have heard old gaffers quickly around any fellow who says he spoke to a man who spoke to Livermore and that Livermore said so-and-so. A "tip" from him is spoken of as if it were as good as a fat dividend. What this young gentleman has ever done, as far as I know, has been to speculate, not to say plunge, in stocks, sometimes making a lot of money, at other times losing it.

Verily, what fools these mortals be!

There are a good many things I would rather be than German bonds or German marks.

A beautiful story of friendship lies behind the little paragraph in the newspapers the other morning that "C. W. Durant heads a syndicate of fifteen men, who each subscribed for $50,000 of Seiberling's stock." This Seiberling is Frank A., formerly president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, who dropped out when the financial powers took hold when troubled days came. Seiberling had once formed the Seiberling Rubber Company, and means to become a big factor in the industry.

The story, as I am told it, is this: Once, when Durant was in an extremely tight position with his General Motors Company, he was threatened with loss of control. Frank Seiberling came to him and said: "Don't fret a bit about what you owe me. You devote yourself to taking care of your other troubles. I'll stand by you and will not ask you are ready to pay us." The amount, it is understood, was about a million dollars, representing three the Goodyear Tire Company, which dropped out when the financial powers took hold when troubled days came. Seiberling had once formed the Seiberling Rubber Company, and means to become a big factor in the industry.

Stocks Irregular in New York; Active Issues Rule Higher; Exchange Rises

NARROW RANGE FOR MOST LEADERS

Rails Are Up, While Sugars, Motors and Coppers Recede; Trading on Big Scale

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks are irregular in New York all the morning, but at the close most of the leaders were showing gains. Oils, steels and rails were strong on the whole, while sugars, coppers and motors had a heavy tone. The price range was rather narrow. There was profit taking on a large scale and this held the market in check. It had an upward trend in the main. Trading was of magnificent proportions, approximating 700,000 shares.

Foreign exchange rates were high, over last night and far above those in the advance, demand sterling rising to 4.44 and cables to $4.40⅝. France improved. Marks were down 3⅜ at 4⅝ per cent, call rate holds over until Monday.

Among strongest issues at the end were Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Baldwin, Reading, Republic Steel, Missouri Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio. Issues that declined slightly included Du Pont, Studebaker, Industrial Alcohol, Kennecott, Anaconda, Utah Copper, Crucible Steel, Central Leather, Texas Company, Goodrich, Pan American, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio and Chic. Rock Island. Forenoon gains ranged from fractions to more than two points.

Boston Market Has Irregular Session

The Boston market was irregular all the morning as regards price movement, and fairly active for a week-end session. Trading was reflective of the usual Saturday realignments, but Mexican Petroleum featured the list, advancing 2 to 2¼, a new high for more than a year. Elder also sold at its highest since 1920, going up a fraction on a few transactions.

Packing issues were weak and active. South International sold at a new low since 1920. Arpheum was another weak and moving up and down within a fractional range. Copper issues showed some strength. Point or more gains were made by Waldorf, Boston & Maine A, Atlantic Fruit, Agricultural preferred and Edison. Waltham Watch preferred and Pacific Mills sagged two points, while losses to decline a point or more included Calumet & Arizona, Mohawk, U. S. Smelting, Hancock, Utah Copper and Swift & Co.

The Curb was strong and active. Boston & Montana was unchanged at 26 bid in all the close. Crystal was up ⅛ at 1⅜, First National Copper sold at 80 cents, Ariadne at 52 cents, and Mutual 2 cents at 20 cents. Three Metals was down 1 cents at 98 cents.

Steady at Start: Price Range Narrow

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, April 8.—The stock market was steady at the opening with narrow fluctuations in prices. The rails and local traction stocks again exhibited a firm tendency, while oils and motors sold off fractionally from the previous close.

U. R. T. opened at 24⅜ for a gain of ⅜ and a new high on the movement. Baltimore & Ohio sold up at 43½; Lehigh Valley up ⅜ at 44½, and New Haven up ¼ at 21¾.

TICKER TAPE'S WHISPER IS CHEERFUL

Means Business Is Improving and Going to Improve More, Says Evans

By B. C. EVANS.

Chicago, April 8.—People that were recently rooting about among annual reports and other statistics are now watching the blackboard, reading the tape or enriching the telephone companies by sending in orders to buy stocks.

Looks dangerous? Yes. But when you hunt for other signs of recovery you find them in nothing more than one of those lazy lapses—stentax—that the beast has indulged in many times in the past few weeks. If the movement slackens a bit, that giddy, impertinence, Gulf Steel Steel, starts up and makes merry.

It does seem as if a reaction were overdue, but little ones have come along during the whole course of the recovery and have added strength to the trade. Of course, we shall have a big one some time. An event must have been lost in the past may turn up in the future, such are the curiosities of our mundane affairs.

For the present expectation on golden wings is flopping off into the empyrean. Let's not mind that, in place, every fibre of the bird's innards in full strain. It is jolly.

Nor is there much satisfaction in the speculative buying of today to bloom into profit some time in the future. The capitalist, who in 1921 saw the boat cruelly taken out of his sequities, can now bear their rustic as they expand in the bay. He has hundreds where then he had 25's or 50's. He exults over a tyrannical government that cannot tax his gains because they are capital, not income.

Not a dollar has been added by this process to the wealth of the country, but we say that many dollars will be added later on. The tape is whispering to you a profound secret, now pretty well known to everyone that business is improving and is going to improve more.

Copper Going Up

In the copper trade it is believed that the red metal will soon sell at thirteen cents a pound. The market has been strengthened by increased export demand. During the first half of 1921 foreign buying averaged about 40,000,000 pounds a month. For first three months of this year it is believed export sales have averaged 75,000,000 pounds a month. Much of this copper has come from the 400,000,000 pounds under the basis of the $40,000,000 Copper Export Association bond issue. It is believed that the financed copper now aggregates less than 200,000,000 pounds.

Wall Street Loans Increase

It is figured that loans of all kinds by Wall Street brokers now aggregate between $900,000,000 and $1,000,000,000. Early in March they were approximately $700,000,000 to $800,000,000. The high point was reached in 1919, when loans totaled about $1,750,000,000. This is one result of lower money rates and million-share stock markets.

Bigger Crops for South

Fertilizer sales indicate that Southern States will produce larger crops this year. They totaled 810,446 tons in March for Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Tennessee, against 718,923 tons in March last year.

Dividend Declarations

Havana Electric Railway, Light & Power declared semi-annual dividend of $3 a share on both common and preferred, payable May 15. Books close April 20, reopen May 19.

Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brockton declared quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share, payable May 1 of stock of record April 15.

Hupp Motor Car Corporation declared quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on common, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

United States Rubber Company declared semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on preferred, payable April 20 to holders of record April 10.

Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation declared quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on participating preferred. Books close April 15 to stock of record April 14.

Hollander Mining declared semi-annual dividend of 25 cents a share, payable April 25 to stock of record April 20.

Allis Chalmers Manufacturing declared quarterly common dividend of 1 per cent, payable May 15 to stock of record April 28.

Curtiss Aeroplane declared quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on preferred, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15.

Pittsburgh Steel declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on preferred, payable May 1 to stock of record April 19.

Corporation Reports

For 1921 the General Electric Company shows net profits available for dividends of $21,602,812, the stock outstanding this year equaling 12,000,000 shares. This compares with $22,132,288, equal to 15.8 per cent in 1920, and $11,240,212, equal to 9.3 per cent in 1919.

The Kresge Company reports March sales of $4,180,849 against $4,042,228 in the third month of last year. For the quarter sales were $11,841,846, against $11,325,237.

The Pittsburgh Steel Company, Superior Steel Corporation, reports net profits of $200,000 or $2.50 a share, a gain of 37 per cent.

Net profits of Pittsburgh Steel for 1921 were $729,826 after all charges, an increase of $192,017.

The Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation reports net profits for 1921 of $2,227,000, against after preferred dividends of $2,27 a share on common, against $15,780,000.

The Goodrich Tire & Rubber reports net loss of $678,036, against net loss $317,205 in 1920.

Town and City Loans

Peabody, Mass., will be in the market until 11 a. m. April 10 for $200,000 of 4½ per cent 1-year loans.

Lowell, Mass., will receive bids until 11 a. m. April 11 for temporary loans in anticipation of $200,000, dated April 12. Separate bids are invited for $100,000 of notes to run for one year, and $100,000 to run for six months.

Lowell, Mass., will receive bids until 12

TEST PROBLEMS THAT PUZZLE READERS

Mooted Points Are Made Clear to Contestants by the Editor

Readers who are taking part in the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Titles Test probably will be interested in the problems of other contestants as set forth in letters to the Test Editor:

SIGNING OF NAME.

Test Editor:

Please advise me if it is necessary to fill in my name and address on every picture. Will it be all right to fill in the last picture and make out one slip with my name and address and place it in front of the book in which I paste the pictures? This would save a lot of time. Winchester.

Your question is answered by the seventh paragraph of the Rules.

Dear Test Editor:

Will you kindly advise me through the paper if the same title will be used more than once. Will there be two or more dinners at which the same titles? This is important. A. J. H. New London.

There may be; there may not be.

BAN FOLLOWS PROTESTS.

Dear Sir:

Will you kindly tell me whether or not the present Title Test is being conducted in a different manner from former tests? I notice you say obsolete words or meanings are not to be used in this Test when as a matter of fact they have been used in former contests. For instance, "Lady of the Lake," which I am pleased to say I had correct in the Book Title Test.

There are two instances in the present test in which meanings marked "Obs." by the dictionary appear to fit the drawings perfectly, but on the strength of your statement that the obsolete is banned I am taking the word opposite to me to be the next best titles. Am I right? H. W. B.

Obsolete words or meanings will not be used in the Famous Titles Test. If the artist brings them forward at the close of the Test as his authority for any drawing, that drawing will be thrown out as unfair. The ban is the result of many protests against the Book Test drawing you refer to.

Dear Sir:

NO PICTURES CONCEALED.

In Drawing No. 28, about one inch from the corner of the house towards the window there appears to be a profile. Would like to know if it is a necessary part of the picture to make it fit the title.

Dover C. H. L.

There are no pictures concealed within other pictures. Your No. 28 is identical with the No. 28 in the possession of every other contestant.

Dear Test Editor:

Please tell me, if it is permissible, whether there are two letters, an "P" and a "C," at the bottom of drawing No. 24, or are they part of the shading?

Cambridge N. B. G.

Part of the shading.

Title Test Editor:

Please send me a set of Title Test drawings as some of mine are torn. Thanks, also about the black cat in No. 15? Also that in No. 20 is the thing the man is on supposed to be a musical instrument? Thanks. In No. 24 should we consider the fence an enclosure or partly so? It's a sticker, anyhow. J. M. G.

You forgot to give your name and address, but perhaps it is just as well. I have no "sets" to send anyone. There isn't any black cat in the re-print of No. 15. What appears to be one is merely a smudge of ink. Your other questions are outlawed.

NO OBSOLETE WORDS.

Dear Test Editor:

As a contestant in your interesting Famous Titles Test I would like to ask for a little information.

In some dictionaries the second meaning of a word is called obsolete, whereas another does not put this meaning as obsolete. This is the case with certain meanings of "cattle" and "fears." One of the meanings of "cattle" is "property" and one of the meanings of "fear" is "companion."

Now, if I use a dictionary which marks these meanings as obsolete I cannot consider the titles I have in mind, whereas if I use another I can.

Please try to help me out of my predicament.

Don't you think it would be better if all meanings in the dictionary were allowed?

Pawtucket. C. A. S.

Answering your last question first, I do. The rule for the present test, however, has been laid down as "no obsolete words or meanings."

Dear Sir:

In regard to your Drawing No. 25, there seems a title for the appended list, "Highland Cattle," which would fit the picture if you use "property" in the sense of "cattle." However, the dictionary calls this meaning obsolete.

I strongly suspect, though of course I don't expect you to tell, that this was the one the artist intended to illustrate.

What I would like to know is, if you think it wise to tell, if the artist illustrated a title with the meaning of a word which the dictionary declares obsolete, would that picture be thrown out of the contest?

Ashmont. D. K.

Please see answer, above, to H. W. B.

SEX EDUCATION IN AUSTRALIA URGED

Sydney, N. S. W., April 3.—More adequate provision for home training should be made for girls, according to a decision reached by the interstate conference in Hobart of Australian National Council of Women regarding the rights and status of their sex. Need of sex education of school children was urged in one resolution which called upon the Federal government to appoint a medical man, a medical woman and a biologist with authority to organize and direct such courses in the teachers' training colleges.

MUSIC NOTES

PAULIST CHOIR

Boys of all sorts are given opportunity for general and musical development in the great organization of choristers which will appear at Boston Opera House, Sunday, April 30.

In their magnificent home on Riverside Drive, New York city, boys from almost every social stratum are assembled and by scientific processes, characteristic of the Paulist Choristers, they are soon made over and amalgamated into one type of boy—the Chorister boy.

The boys come from all parts of the United States and boys from homes where finances would never permit a thorough education to the boy are given the preference among the candidates.

Many of the boys who were stars of the former Chicago organization now humbly share the responsibilities of the Choristers' work with their associates from the East, the South and the far West.

The solo-boys are from all parts of the country. Master Edward Slattery, a former Boston boy, who will be the leading solo artist at the Opera House concert, has probably sung before more audiences than any boy soprano since the days of Blatchford Kavanaugh.

TWENTY-SECOND SYMPHONY

The following program will be played at the twenty-second regular pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Pierre Monteux, to take place next Friday afternoon, April 14, and Saturday evening, April 15. Haydn's Second Symphony in D major, (B. and H. No. 2), three numbers from the Incidental Music of Schumann to Byron's "Manfred" (Entreact, Cowherd's Song, an English horn solo, and Invocation of the Fairy of the Alps). The "Good Friday Spell" from the third act of Wagner's "Parsifal," and Richard Strauss' large proportioned symphonic poem, "Don Quixote."

LAST EXTRA SYMPHONY

Richard Burgin, the brilliant young concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will appear as soloist at the last symphony concert of the Monday evening series of five, which will take place in Symphony Hall next Monday evening, April 10, at 8:15. Pierre Monteux will also present at this concert Goldmark's Overture to "Sakuntala." Richard Strauss humorous tondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," one of the most popular scores of the illustrious composer, and the symphony with organ of mighty proportions by Saint-Saens.

MacGUIGAN RECITAL

One of the most interesting stories that has come over from New York for a long time is the one which surrounds the coming appearance of Madeleine MacGuigan.

Miss MacGuigan is the only woman violinist claiming Ireland as a birth place. She has appeared on the concert platform for a long time. She has played with many of the best symphony orchestras in the country and is now at the head of a movement to organize an "Irish Symphony Orchestra" and naturally turns her eyes toward Boston, feeling that Boston should be the place for such a thing.

At her forthcoming recital at Jordan Hall, next Tuesday evening, she will play compositions by Saint-Saens, Chausson, Mana-Zucca, Moore-MacGuigan, Huber, Mondelsohn-Achron and Wieniawski.

THE PEOPLE'S SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The twenty-second and closing concert of the season will be given by this orchestra in the St. James Theatre, Huntington avenue, Sunday, at 3:30 p. m.

This concert will be a testimonial to Emil Mollenhauer, whose untiring devotion as conductor has been instrumental in placing this organization in the front rank of the orchestras of the country.

The numbers of the program which follow have been selected by request: Symphony No. 4 in F minor, Op. 36 ..... Tschaikowsky
Overture to "Rienzi" ..... Thomas
(a) Intermezzo (Cavalleria rusticana) ..... Mascagni
(b) Liebesgeflower ..... Tschaikowsky
Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg" ..... Wagner

CASALS WITH HARVARD GLEE CLUB

The Harvard Glee Club, the men's chorus from Harvard, which is now touring the famous, conducted by Archibald T. Davison, will make its last appearance of the season in Boston next Wednesday evening, April 12, at 8:15.

Pablo Casals, the extraordinary 'cellist, who is called not only the greatest master of this instrument, but one of the greatest of all artists now living, will share this program.

ELLA KOLAR

The American debut of Miss Ella Kolar, a young and beautiful Chicago girl, will take place at Symphony Hall on Friday evening, April 21 at 8 o'clock. Miss Kolar, who has just returned from Italy, made her European debut at the Verdi Theatre in Milan, Italy, in the role of "Suntuzza" in "Cavalleria Rusticana." Critics were unanimous in declaring her debut most successful. Miss Kolar possesses a rich mezzo-soprano voice, which can easily sustain—due to the extraordinary extension of her vocal organs—soprano parts.

BABY SHOW AT HOME BEAUTIFUL EXPOSITION

800 Children Expected to Be Entered at Mechanics Building Event

More than 800 babies—the Kings and queens of Boston's "Thirteenth" are expected to enter the baby show that is to be held in connection with the second annual Home Beautiful exposition, which will open in Mechanics Building on Saturday next day.

One hundred and fifty prizes have been offered by Chester I. Campbell, general manager of the exposition, to the babies judged to be the best in their class. Contests will be held for the most beautiful baby, the fattest baby, the most unusual baby and for the prettiest babies in this section of the country.

Manager Campbell has engaged L. M. Rich of New York, who has managed some of the biggest baby shows in the country, to take charge of the event.

The first session of the baby show is to be held on Tuesday, April 18, with a contest to find the fattest baby. On the following day the smallest babe will be selected. On Thursday the best twins will have their day and on Friday the youngest youngsters will be given an opportunity to show their best stunts when they are. Saturday will be the day little girls will compete with their dolls.

Special entry blanks for the registration of babies can be obtained at the office of the Home Beautiful, 24 Park square, where Mr. Rich will be glad to furnish mothers with any information. There is no charge for registration.

Missouri Would Lose Great American in Reed

Wilsonian Pacifists Are Opposing Re-election of Senator, So Favorably Known to Massachusetts Democrats

The pacifist adherents of Woodrow Wilson, who swallowed his League of Nations whole, because it was sugar-coated with the claim that it would prevent war, are opposing the re-election of Senator Reed, so well and favorably known to the Democrats of Massachusetts.

If the Democrats of Missouri only knew what the Democrats of Massachusetts think of their Senator Reed, they would make small indeed the number of men claiming to be Democrats who are opposing Reed because he was not a Democrat during the Wilson administration.

There is no man in the United States Senate except our own Senator Walsh of whom the Democrats are so fond and who can draw so big a crowd in New England as Senator Reed of Missouri.

We have seen a Missouri newspaper that charges him with disloyalty to the Wilson administration and the Democratic party because he opposed the League of Nations. It was certainly not disloyalty to the Democratic party, nor disloyalty to the country. Those who were guilty of disloyalty to the Democratic party were those who aided and abetted President Wilson in the attempt to put the League of Nations upon the country. That issue buried the Democratic party under the most stupendous avalanche of votes that ever before wrecked any political party in the history of America. We assume, because we admire him so, that Senator Reed will make no apologies for the leadership which distinguished him throughout the country in the fight against the League of Nations.

If disloyalty to the Wilson administration means that Senator Reed failed to support the great outstanding measures which, during the ante-war period, marked the Wilson administration as constructive and loyal to its pledges and which gave Mr. Wilson his re-election, then Senator Reed should be honored for his efficient support of truly Democratic measures rather than barked at for too great independence.

The three great milestones which marked the progress of the Wilson administration before the war were the Clayton anti-trust law, the child labor law and the Federal Reserve act. Senator Reed supported all these measures, and his support was powerful as the support of a man of his forensic power must always be.

At the very outset of the Wilson administration, when a favorable atmosphere and favorable public impression was necessary to give the Wilson policies fair weather in public opinion, the President made a charge of lobbying against his measures. He made it hastily, and while he knew it was true, he did not gather the proof of it. It was Reed who sprang to his rescue and made good the charge.

When the Clayton act was taking its difficult stages it was Reed who championed it, and fought to keep the teeth in it.

The Federal Reserve act was the third great constructive measure which stands to the credit of the Wilson administration. Never once was a voice needed for the Federal Reserve act in the contest over its passage when Senator Reed was found wanting.

He voted for war.

Our government was not established to make an absolute monarch of a President. Nor does a man give up his conscience to party caucuses, who conscientiously assumes the great responsibility of the United States Senator. We presume, although we do not know, that Senator Reed may have refused to follow the President on everything that he did or wanted to do and on every appointment. If we found that he showed no such independence we should think a great deal less of him.

A United States Senator whom the people of Massachusetts hold second to none told a representative of the Boston American last Tuesday that Senator Reed of Missouri shared with Senator Borah of Idaho the honor of being the most powerful debater on the floor of the Senate, and he added that he believed that Reed had a greater power of denunciation than Borah. He said further, that Reed's speech on the admission of Newberry was the finest thing of its kind that had been done in the Senate since he had been a member.

It may be a source of pride to Missourians to know that during the coming election of United States Senator, Senator Reed's speech on the admission of Newberry will be the text of that most important issue which is to be raised against Senator Lodge. No man is fit to sit in the United States Senate who votes to corrupt it by admitting to its membership a man who obtained his election by corruption. Reed made the most powerful argument for the sancity and purity of the Senate against Newberry's admission, and that argument without doubt will be used throughout the country to the advantage of Democratic candidates for the Senate.

If these kinds of services be treason to the Democratic party, then let us have some more of them. If Missouri loses Reed, she will lose a great American.

Take Coal Strike Calmly

Commissioner Hultman Says There Is No Excuse for Any Increase in Price

The Commissioner on the Necessaries of Life warns us not to become excited about the coal strike.

He says that there is plenty of coal on hand and that there is no excuse for any increase in its price. He also warns us that speculators will be abroad in the land attempting to stampede us, as they did before, into a desperate willingness to pay any price for coal, lest we should not get it at all. Mr. Hultman tells us to pay no attention whatever to these speculators, but to pursue the even tenor of our way, as if there were no coal strike.

It looks to us like good advice, and we hope our readers will follow it.

Battleships Going

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

An English authority says that in five years airships will have driven warships off the face of the ocean—they haven't the faintest chance against dynamite bombs from above. You have read the same statement here and elsewhere. That helps us to understand why England and other countries were willing to cut down the number of battleships.

It helps to explain also the ingenuity and earnestness with which Japan is building ships planned exclusively for carrying flying machines for bombing purposes. A single ship could bring several hundred flying machines across the Pacific, and release them for their dynamiting errands.

Somebody's Birthday

Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

IF today is your birthday, your character should be rich in natural talents, but not necessarily as fortunate in the decree of will power it possesses. Indeed, with you it will always be a question of being willing to do a thing rather than a problem of choosing what to do, for you might choose any one of a number of different vocations because circumstances might lead you to develop any one of your numerous talents.

However, once your genuine interest is aroused, you are capable of indefatigable persistence in any task you have undertaken, because you really liked it. You have a remarkably keen faculty of intuition, but one that is more active than accurate.

Today's stars show splendid conditions for all material things. However, from 4 p. m. on signs change and no further serious decisions should be made. The coming year for you will be full of minor annoyances, but there will be no necessity for drastic changes, as conditions will right themselves, and, spiritually, you will be content.

A child born today will be affectionate and sensitive and rather difficult to understand, being much more spiritual than earthly.

Famous persons born today:

David Rittenhouse—Astronomer.

Fred C. Pond (Will Wildwood)—Journalist.

Pling Freeman—Pioneer insurance expert.

Irving R. Wile—Artist.

Weighing the Sunlight

By Garrett P. Serviss

"DO light rays weigh anything?" asks a reader. His question leads to Einstein's lodge in the vast wilderness of mathematical physics. And yet there is more that is amusing than that is terrifying on the way through the brush.

Yes, light rays do weigh something, or better say light can be weighed. Newton knew that fact 250 years before Einstein, and there would never have been any doubt about it but for the obscurity produced by the undulatory theory of light and the invention of the luminiferous ether as a medium to carry the "light-waves."

Newton's idea was that light consisted of "corpuscles," almost infinitely minute projectiles shot out from luminous bodies, and he most naturally assumed that these infinitesimal projectiles were subject, like everything else, to gravitation.

Bending of Rays

He predicted the bending of the rays of light, a phenomenon that most persons today suppose to have been discovered by Einstein. All that Einstein has done is to approach the subject in a new way, made possible by the advance knowledge since Newton's day.

Nobody knows yet all that may result from it, but one very notable thing is that it has practically restored, in a certain sense, Newton's original idea that light is made up of some kind of projectiles shot out from shining bodies.

They now call these "quanta." There is still a great deal of the enigmatic about them, and we need not consider them further, except to point out that a projectile of any kind necessarily implies the possession of mass, and mass cannot exist in the presence of gravitation without manifesting what we call weight.

The streams of projectiles, or quanta, that form light rays must be drawn out of their course by the gravitational force of the earth, the sun and every other massive body. But they go so fast—186,000 miles in a second—that ordinarily they get past and practically out of the reach of the attracting body before a noticeable deflection has occurred in their direction. It requires a body of great mass and size, like the sun, to affect a passing light ray with sufficient intensity, and for a sufficient length of time, to turn it so much aside that our means of observation may detect and measure the wandering.

The uninitiated might suppose that any astronomer could try that experiment any day. But not so; the experiment requires very exceptional conditions which are very rarely met with.

To mention only one thing—the sun must be hidden from the observer's eyes in order that the star lying nearly behind it may be seen, and this can only happen during a total eclipse of the sun by the moon.

Eclipse of 1919

These conditions were met in the eclipse of May 29, 1919, and, being then for the first time actually looked for, then for the first time bending of a ray of starlight in passing the sun was observed and measured.

Here, then, you have visual proof that light "weighs something," just as a long distance shell, owing on its way of destruction through the high air, gives visual proof of its weight by curving gradually downward toward the attracting earth. But there is, and has been, other proof no less satisfactory.

A. S. Eddington has calculated the weight of light. "All the sunlight falling on the earth," he says, "amounts to 160 tons daily."

Letter to the Editor

Food Profiteering

Editor Boston American:

There is not much need for District Attorney O'Brien to make an investigation as to food profiteering. All he has to do is to go into any restaurant and order an egg and he will see how they are robbing the people that have to eat in restaurants. When eggs were a dollar a dozen we paid ten cents for an egg. Now that they are twenty-seven cents a dozen we still pay ten cents for one egg.

Beans were selling at eleven cents a quart and we paid fifteen cents a plate. Now they are four cents a quart and we still pay fifteen cents a plate. So anyone can see without much investigation how we are getting robbed.

You are always first to show these things up and I hope you will keep at this until some of those robbers land in jail. It is about time some one got after the restaurant managers. The saloons were bad enough, but the restaurants are worse robbers by a long ways.

Needs Mental Disarmament

SEATTLE, Wash., April 10.—Shaking the mailed fist of Nippon at the United States under cover of a "peace" talk, Hirose Saito, secretary to the Japanese delegation at the recent Washington conference, lays the foundation for treating the ten-year naval holiday pact as a "scrap of paper."

"Unless there is mental disarmament," he declared, after pointing out that the problem of Japanese residents on the coast has not yet been settled, "like destroying of a few ships will be of no avail.

"Unless mental disarmament is accomplished within the decade, we will be building warships," he added.

"Mental disarmament," according to Saito, will require the United States to lift the present bars against the Japanese.

Saito made his address before the Rotary Club here. While he avoided any direct statement with reference to the building of warships before the ten-year period is up, he made it plain that a tremendous campaign is to be launched at once and wholesale propaganda is to be spread in behalf of Japanese citizenship and land ownership rights within the United States.

"All pending questions between the United States and Japan have practically been settled except that of Japanese residents on the coast," said Saito. "If you approach this problem on a broad international basis it also can be solved.

"The prosperity of the Pacific coast," he said, "is bound with that of the Orient."

MARRIAGE IN HASTE IS OFTEN RUED

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

IN California they're talking about a new law.

Something that will compel people who intend to marry to publish that intention at least before such a ceremony can be performed.

What do you think of the idea?

Rather practical and rather good, it seems to me.

Of course, there are cases where it wouldn't work just right, but usually a wedding which can't be announced fifteen days ahead shouldn't be a wedding at all.

There's the silly little girl who runs away with the adventurer and wakes up when it's too late.

There's the youth who falls out with his real sweetheart, meets some reckless girl who's crazy to be married, and marries her on a minute's notice—out of spite.

Would Save Silly Old Folks

There's the rich old widower who meets the adventuress on the train, steps off at the station and marries her, to die a miserable wreck in less than a year.

There's the rich widow, coming home from visiting her grandchildren. She's the one who meets a shiny-haired entertainer at a hotel cafe, and marries him, and brings humiliation and disgrace upon herself and her unfortunate children—to say nothing of her grandchildren.

There's the wedding—just for a lark.

There are the two or three young couples with nothing else to do, who leave the picnic and drive to the county seat and are married—and regret it the rest of their lives.

All these cases would be prevented by the new law they're trying to get in California.

Who would be affected by it—really?

Girls under age, who want to marry against their parents' consent—boys not yet twenty-one, who simply can't wait another day to call little Tottie Coughdrop—their wife.

Childish old men, running away from their families.

Silly old women trying to grasp at the vision of youth and love and call it back at the verge of the grave.

Who else would be affected?

No one that I can see.

Old Adage Still Holds

"Marry in haste, repent at leisure." What a lot there is in some of those old proverbs! The man who wrote that proverb certainly had seen something of runaway weddings in his day. Oh, yes, some of them turn out very happily—but that's in spite of the fact that they were runaways—and not because of it.

Yes, I'm for the fifteen days' notice, myself. I think it might help to prevent a lot of misery, or at least a great deal of humiliation and something very much like disgrace.

Ex Libris

—By Zoe B. Faber—

NOTHING but the name of Sarah Bernhardt on the cover saved the face of "The Idol of Paris" from being just a perfectly commonplace story that is not more than mildly interesting, and that only in spots.

The whole world's interest in the great French tragedienne and all that has ever concerned her from the time that she made her debut is the only logical reason that this story should have readers of any discrimination.

It seemed to us that the original French must have been considerably less tiresome than the English version, for there are many places where it is very obvious that the translation is too literal to be either smooth or pleasing.

One other point that we failed entirely to see any reason for is the fact that she confined herself to one year and that certainly not the most interesting of a life that has been unusually vivid and crowded with close association of all the great artists of her own time.

If you can consider "The Idol of Paris" entirely from the point of view of being a page out of the life of Sarah Bernhardt, it will have interest for you. Regarded purely as a story, it is quite likely that you would be bored.

Why didn't she pick out more interesting years and include more of them in her book? In it, perhaps, that Mme. Bernhardt has other volumes up her sleeve?

FOXY OLD BOY

"And you are ninety-five years old!" she exclaimed. "How wonderful! You look so well, so strong, so young. How have you managed to do it?"

"My method is very simple," the venerable gentleman replied. "I have never let any of my friends know it if I didn't happen to be feeling well, consequently I've never had to take any of the things they would have recommended if they had known I was ailing."

EATING THE BUNNIES ERE THEY ARE BRED

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IF you are stranded on a desert island, even diamonds are worthless. A live rabbit would be more valuable.

That was a curious item of news from Germany which told of Berlin's City Council making the unpleasant discovery of a war debt of 100,000,000 marks for rabbits.

In 1917 a large consignment of bunnies had been bought from Holland, and were distributed chiefly to Berlin citizens and mainly for breeding purposes.

The city pledged a coal mine at Rochlitz as security. The rabbits were soon killed and eaten on account of the high cost of food. And now nothing remains but the debt of 1,250,000 Dutch guilders.

German Ideas

It was another of those theoretically good German ideas, which the hard and practical test of war proved to be worthless.

If the stress of abnormal times makes rabbits more valuable for immediate food than for breeding purposes, be sure that plans for the future will be sacrificed for present need.

When you are hungry enough, a rabbit stew in the stomach is worth a dozen bunnies in the hedge.

What a wonderworld it would be if the rabbit had at least two lives, so that after eating it in a stew, you could still use it for breeding!

Perhaps, you have heard the story of the hostler who had read of the marvelous manner in which Belgian hares multiplied. One day, his employer was approaching the stables, when he heard his hostler's voice repeating over and over again: "One, two, three! Count, ding ye!"

And each time his exclamation was accompanied by a dull concussion.

Opening the stable door, he he found that the thud was caused by the servant's banging together of two Belgian hares! Asked for an explanation, the man said that he had heard that the hares multiplied so wonderfully, and here he couldn't even make the little fools count, one, two, three!

It is stupid to try to make Guinea count that don't count. And it is equally foolish to deceive yourself about the scale of values. Nothing is worth anything unless you really want it and can use it.

And most things are destroyed by use.

One of the most difficult of truths to learn is that you cannot eat your cake and have it, too—except, perhaps as a temporary tenant.

The news item, three and a half years after the war, of the discovery of a bill for a vast army of rabbits, is a grim reminder of the danger of counting your bunnies before they are bred.

It is a common human failing to live on expectations and to spend the income which you think you are going to have.

Not only "'twixt the cup and the lip," but between most planning and achievement, there's many a slip.

One of our clever cartoonists sometime published a series based upon the idea that they all took pratfalls at a distance. Because, proverbially, distance lends the enchantment of beauty.

Realism, of course, seems possible in the land of dreams.

You will recall that, at the beginning of the war, the Kaiser had a schedule which was to let him dine in Brussels, Paris and London on particular dates.

Well, he got no further than Brussels sprouts. And finally he was reduced to a steady fare of Dutch cheese at Doorn! These were the results of miscalculations of the Hohenzollern chef.

As It Should Be

You are lucky if you get all that is coming to you, let alone being alone with more than you deserve.

Which is as it should be. For real and earnest life cannot be a God's paradise in which you may count and spend your gains before you have earned them.

Every now and then the newspapers invite your correspondence on the subject of what you would do with a million dollars. If you have enough wit left, after working for your thirty or fifty a week, you may, with your best answer to that Foolish Question 367,541 win the prize of $10.

Sometimes the prize is as high as $1,000. In either case, you would be wise to determine, in advance, your use of it as a possible winner. You have already won if you have determined to enrich your head with wisdom which cannot be taken from you, rather than adorn your body with clothes, which will wear out or go out of style.

If you do win the prize, and go into the business of breeding bunnies, spanking figuratively, be sure that you do not eat up your capital, or else you may finally be forced to live on the interest of your debts.
